BOOZE PERMIT INVESTIGATORS CHECK CANTON

Many Clubs Likely to Lose Their Licenses, Says Attorney General.

CLEVELAND — (AP) — "Some citations for revocations" were promised, possibly next week, by Atty. Gen. Hugh S. Jenkins who today extended to Canton an investigation into numerous private club liquor licenses issued during the two weeks preceding inauguration of the present Republican state administration.

Jenkins, three assistant attorneys general and 11 state highway patrolmen serving as special inspectors, directed their investigation from headquarters here and since their arrival Saturday have checked permit-holders in Cleveland, Youngstown, Akron, Warren and Lorain.

"There will be some citations for revocations as soon as we get the information we need to complete the case," Jenkins said. "This I hope to do by the first of the week."

The Antlers Social club of Cleveland returned to the state liquor department a private club permit received on Jan. 14, Jenkins said last night. He added that another local club was believed to have returned its permit, although the liquor department had not yet received it.

50 Permits Checked.

A scrutiny of at least 50 new permits granted between Jan. 1 and Jan. 13, when Gov. Thomas J. Herbert succeeded Frank J. Lausche, and of all of the new permits among 49 private clubs licensed in December is being made, Jenkins said. Some of the December permits were renewals.

"It would appear in some instances that incorrect statements were made in the applications," Jenkins declared.

Investigators said they had found several private clubs offered only doubtful proof of being bonafide social clubs as the law requires, while others were unable to show they were operating on a non-profit basis, another requirement.

Former Governor Lausche made public yesterday a letter written to Herbert Jan. 21 asking that permits issued after Jan. 10 be investigated.

"When Robert Sohngen resigned as director of the department of liquor control, effective as of midnight Jan. 8, it was my understanding that no further permits were to be issued after his departure," it was said in the letter. Sohngen was appointed to the Ohio supreme court.

CLEAN BILL SEEN FOR CLUBS HERE

Three private clubs in Mansfield that received liquor licenses during former Gov. Frank J. Lausche's administration probably will get a "clean bill of health," John P. Hergatt, of Mansfield, vice president of the Buckeye Retail Liquor Dealers' association, asserted today.

Hergatt, operator of the Ringside Night club, also said he expected "every permit issued in the state during the last three years" to be investigated during the inquiry now being conducted by Atty. Gen. Hugh S. Jenkins.

"But I don't think they'll find any D-4 (private club licenses) which aren't legitimate," he said.

SUGAR RATION UP TO CONGRESS

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The administration looked to congress today for removal of the legal cloud which now threatens to smother the entire sugar rationing program.

A high ration official said that legislation will be sought to free sugar rationing from the restrictions imposed by the War Mobilization and Reconversion act.

The act has been held by a district court decision to forbid a "historic use" system of rationing sugar to industrial users. The government has appealed that decision, but ration officials concede that by April 1 the sugar supply situation will have improved to a point where there is no doubt that "historic use" allocations are invalidated under the act.

Congress will have to take some action before March 31 if it wants to continue sugar rationing. The second war powers act, under which rationing is authorized, expires at that time.

Meanwhile, government lawyers are preparing for a Feb. 7 appeal hearing on the judgment invalidating the "historic use" system.

'Black Dahlia' Suspect Says He Murdered Girl

MICROSCOPIC CHECK for fingerprints and other clues on letters supposedly sent by the killer of 22-year-old Elizabeth Short, the "Black Dahlia," is conducted by Ray Pinker of the Los Angeles police crime and detection bureau.—(International)

LOS ANGELES—(INS)—Dan S. Voorhees, 33, was booked today as the suspected slayer of Elizabeth Short—"The Black Dahlia"—after he assertedly signed a terse one-line confession.

Police said Voorhees telephoned homicide headquarters and asked for Capt. Jack Donahoe. Informed Donahoe was not in, Voorhees reportedly told detectives: 'I want to talk about the Black Dahlia case."

The telephone voice agreed to meet officers on a street corner.

Detective Ed Barrett said Voorhees told him he first met the Black Dahlia in 1941 at the same Fourth and Hill streets corner where he was seized, and went out with her.

Barrett quoted Voorhees as saying he again met Miss Short two weeks ago at the same spot.

The detective said Voorhees then turned sullen and refused to discuss the case further until he had consulted "an attorney" and "my brother." The brother was not identified.

Under questioning at homicide headquarters, Voorhees was reported by police to have signed the confession. He scrawled: "I did kill Beth Short." Then he signed his name.

* * *

Refuses to Explain.

Detectives said the prisoner refused to amplify on his confession or in any way to discuss the case further.

Police Psychiatrist Paul De River was summoned to examine Voorhees but De River was unable to reach any conclusion as to the authenticity of Voorhees' confession.

Voorhees gave police a Los Angeles hotel address. A check there showed he had registered at 10:45 a. m Jan. 15—15 minutes after the Black Dahlia's bisected and hacked body was found by police on a lot.

Throughout questioning Voorhees insisted he last met the slain girl the night she was slain.

Await Letter Writer.

While investigating Voorhees detectives maintained their "death watch" for the possible surrender of the Dahlia's slayer at 10 a. m. today.

The Dahlia's purported slayer set this time for his surrender in a postcard to a Los Angeles newspaper Sunday night.

A close check was being kept on all telephone calls to police headquarters and on mail to enforcement agencies and the newspapers.

Christenia Salisbury, former Ziegfeld Follies' Princess Whitewing, told police she employed Miss Short in her Miami, Fla., cafe in 1945. She met Miss Short in front of a Sunset Strip nitery between 10 and 10.30 the night of Jan. 10.

She said the Black Dahlia was accompanied by two women, a brunet and a blond. Mrs Salisbury said Miss Short told her she was living with them in a San Fernando valley hotel.

Toll Roads to Uncork Bottlenecks Urged

By NORMAN DRESSER
(N-J State Editor)

LOUDONVILLE—A practical solution to the state's traffic "bottlenecks" is the construction of privately-financed toll superhighways bisecting Ohio, State Sen. Ralph A. Winter of Lodi said last night.

Speaking before 180 members and guests at the annual dinner meeting of the Loudonville Chamber of Commerce, he declared that while toll roads "aren't the final answer to our highway problem, they are an alternative to no roads at all."

"We simply do not have adequate highway facilities at present," he said. "And we don't have money for 'dream roads.' That's why I advocate toll highways."

Warning that the "so-called state surplus will vanish before the end of this session of the legislature," he said a 249-mile superhighway could be built in approximately two years and its $152,000,000 cost would be financed by private capital.

* * *

Schools to Take Surplus.

The state treasury will be depleted this year, he said, through increased educational and welfare subsidies, a possible soldier bonus and the probability of declining sales tax revenue.

He pointed out that while private loans would support cost of the superhighways, the bonds would be paid off within 30 years and, under the terms of the bill which he recently introduced in the state legislature, the highway would revert to the state.

The entire cost of the project would be borne by motorists and truckers using the highway, he said. Sen Winter cited the financial success of the Pennsylvania turnpike, which is a toll highway, as proof that such projects are feasible.

Foresees 'Recession.'

The Republican senator representing the 27-29th districts, of which Richland and Ashland counties are a part, predicted a business "recession" before the end of this year.

"Business is not as good now as it was six months ago," he said. "Stores, though still doing a good business, aren't jammed as they once were. If we have a recession, then what happens to the state highway program?"

Sen. Winter, reviewing the high rank of Ohio industrially, cultural-

RAIN, SNOW SEEN FOR CITY DISTRICT

Our befuddled weatherman was in a muddle again today as the mercury stuck around the freezing point, with sleet or sloppy rain falling intermittently.

Yesterday the forecasters promised rising temperatures in the Mansfield area, but he backtracked today by stating not very confidently that it would be "not quite so cold tonight," and tomorrow there'd be rain changing to snow. No severe cold was in sight, however.

The thermometer hit a high of 44 at Hayesville yesterday, while the low this morning was 29. Only a trace of precipitation was recorded.

ELECTRIC FIRMS FIGHT UNION'S BOYCOTT POWER

WASHINGTON—(INS)—The National Electrical Manufacturing association urged congress today to outlaw labor's use of the secondary boycott in order to open major markets and release its industry from the "fear" of bankruptcy.

The plea was given the senate labor committee by R. Stafford Edwards, of New Canaan, Conn., president of the association of 498 electrical manufacturers.

* * *

Markets Closed.

Edwards said that for 12 years many manufacturers have been "excluded" from metropolitan markets, or admitted to them "on terms imposed" by the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Edwards told the committee that the Benjamin Electric Manufacturing company of Des Plaines, Ill., was forced by the IBEW to have fixtures produced outside its CIO plant at increased costs of as much as 500 per cent.

Later, he said, the union tightened up and the company is being forced to cancel "hundreds of thousands dollars of orders"

* * *

Union Holds Club.

He said:

"It is to ignore the power of labor today and the realities of economic life to suppose that local contractors, in most cases small business men, can refuse to obey the dictates of the union.

"If they did so, the union would put them out of business by withdrawing their labor."

Edwards said the boycott is carried out as well through distribution channels. "Through fear of being put out of business," he said, "the wholesalers of New York City have no choice but to sell only those products having the approval of the union."

Edwards charged that in "the great majority of cases", the boycott is used as a "jurisdictional weapon" in inter-union disputes.

Committee Checks Plane Transfer

WASHINGTON—(INS)—A congressional committee will launch an investigation into the reported transfer of a large number of U. S. army transport planes to Lugoslavia and China.

Rep. Rizley (R, Okla.), announced today that hearings will be conducted on the matter by a house expenditures sub-committee investigating surplus property sales. Rizley is chairman of the committee.

P-TA COUNCIL ACTS TO STUDY SCHOOL FUNDS

Decision Is Result of Evening of Confusion and Interruptions.

By PHILIP GREENE

After nearly three hours of confusion and interruptions, the Mansfield Parent-Teacher Association council last night took action to investigate the distribution of funds from the three-mill tax levy approved last fall for operating expenses of the city schools.

Under pressure from more than 200 parents and teachers who were mysteriously summoned to the council's meeting at John Simpson junior high school to discuss distribution of the funds from the levy, the council appointed a five-member committee to meet with board of education representatives for a study of the board's financial operations.

Named as representatives of various P-T A units were E. B. Boling of Hedges, C. H. Freehafer of Prospect, Paul Hauserman of Woodland, F F. Smith of Western, and Mrs. C. J. Kalstein of Newman.

Mrs. Paul M. Stahl, president of the P-T A council, disclaimed any knowledge of the invitation to parents and teachers to attend the meeting and said that neither she nor the council had requested or received permission to use the school's auditorium where the crowd gathered.

* * *

'Know Nothing of It.'

Announcements which were sent home with school children, placed on school bulletin boards, and published and broadcast had stated that interested persons were invited to the council's meeting in the auditorium. Actually, the regular monthly meeting of the council had been scheduled for a small room—Number 207—on the second floor of the school.

"I know nothing about this meeting in the auditorium," Mrs. Stahl told the crowd after the council, interrupted while in session, had moved from Room 207 to the auditorium. "It is impossible to obtain the auditorium without authorization and the council did not ask for the auditorium. Our regular publicity chairman sent out notices that the meeting was to be held in Room 207."

After telling the 200 persons that they were not in the room at the council's invitation, Mrs. Stahl asked anyone who sponsored or called the mass meeting to step forward and act as chairman. No one moved or answered.

* * *

Can't Remember Who.

Hauserman, who is president of the teachers' union, Local 703, American Federation of Teachers, said he had placed the notice on the bulletin board at Senior high school and that he had been authorized to do so by "P-T A members." It was the bulletin board notice from which The News-Journal obtained its information on the meeting

Hauserman said he could not remember who authorized him to place the notice on the board but that is was a general understanding that parents and teachers were to attend the meeting to discuss the levy and teachers' salary increases derived from it.

It remained a mystery as to who, besides "teachers," sent the mimeographed announcements

DIRLAM BUSY AS USUAL ON HIS 91st BIRTHDAY

By MARGUERITE MILLER

Howard B. Dirlam, white-thatched patriarch of the Mansfield Building and Loan association, celebrated his 91st birthday today—behind the same desk at which he started 70 years ago.

The fragrance of a bouquet of yellow daffodils in a vase on the mellowed wood filled his office. The flowers seemed to lend color to a picture of his great-grandchildren.

The flowers were the only tangible evidence of the anniversary. Any observer could quickly see he wanted it that way.

* * *

UNIMPRESSED by either his longevity or his record as the city's senior banker, Dirlam sat surrounded by the "paper business" of the loan firm which he serves as secretary and legal adviser.

Asked if he had always spent his birthdays at work, he answered quickly:

"Oh, yes, there's plenty of work to be done. I've always kept busy. I couldn't just sit around and count my sins."

His recipe for the active life he still leads.

"Well, I've always lived a simple life—eat just what I need and sleep well. I know I'm all right when I'm hungry all the time," he added with a twinkle in his blue eyes

* * *

"A LOT OF PEOPLE eat themselves to death. They eat a lot, drink a lot, stay up late and die young. Night time is the time to sleep so you're rested for the next day."

Dirlam says he's "too busy" for hobbies.

"I used to attend shows pretty regularly, but there haven't been any good ones for a long time. I don't think I've seen one for two months.

"I like Bing Crosby—he's top-notch, but the majority of the shows now have nothing but triangles in them and I'm tired of them."

As he turned back to his work, however, he said he might take a couple hours off to see a movie today—if he had time.

Veteran Takes Enlow's Place As Safety Head

Mansfield is going to have another young service-safety director.

E. L. Morgan, 32, of 460 Woodward avenue, a World War II veteran, was appointed to the post to succeed William W. Enlow, 33, who has resigned. Morgan will take his new post Monday.

The new director is a former industrial traffic manager and engineering student. He is a navy veteran, having served three years with the naval air transport command as an air crewman.

In acepting the appointment by Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, Morgan said "it's a big job." He expressed appreciation "for the confidence Mayor Vaughn has placed in me."

He made no statement concerning his immediate plans for the director's office. "Bill Enlow has done a job and a half," he said. "I wil have to use caution until I get my feet on the ground."

Only 2 Applicants.

He said he was "looking for plenty of cooperation from all city departments and the public." Morgan was one of two applicants considered for the job.

Until he accepted the directorship, Morgan was agent for the Cushman Motor Delivery company, 375 North Main street. The Mansfield office was established about three months ago. The company is a steel hauler.

From 1938 to 1943 Morgan was traffic manager of the Ohio Seamless Tube company, Shelby. From 1943 to 1946 he was in the service, flying navy cargo throughout the United States and to Alaska.

He was employed in the general traffic department of the Republic Steel company, Cleveland, for seven months following his discharge. In November of last year he became agent here for the motor delivery concern.

Lived Here 12 Years.

Morgan came to Mansfield from Akron 12 years ago. His wife, Phyllis, is a native of Marion. She has taught elementary school here for 13 years. The Morgans have three daughters, 6 and 3 years old and 5 months old.

The director studied engineering for three years at Olivet college, Olivet, Mich. From 1936 to 1938 he was a production worker at the Westinghouse Electric corporation here.

Morgan takes over a position held by Enlow for about a year. Enlow resigned, stating that the job has "grown to proportions I no longer care to assume." He made no statement concerning his employment plans for the immediate future.

The Morgans attend the Congregational church in Mansfield. He is a Mason, a member of the American Legion and of the Central Ohio Traffic club.

SOLONS PLEDGE ATOMIC INQUIRY

WASHINGTON—(UP)—The congressional atomic energy committee promised an early investigation today into the security of the atomic bomb and the activities of foreign agents in this country.

Chairman Bourke B. Hickenlooper, R., Ia., said committee members would question civilian and military officials, possibly next week, to learn just how well atomic secrets are being kept.

Meanwhile, a high war department officer voiced belief that Russia does not have an atomic bomb and that it does not have the ability to produce one within the next five or 10 years. This officer, who had close contact with the Russians during the war, said the Soviet Union lacked the necessary industrial equipment and skilled personnel.

He also said he was certain there was no truth in reports that Russia has developed a defense against the atomic bomb If the Russians indicate the contrary, he said, they are "bluffing."

Some war department officers believe the Russians are concentrating on germ and chemical warfare as an answer to the atomic bomb.

FARMER THROWS 3 DAUGHTERS IN WELL

YADKINVILLE, S. C.—(AP)—A 30-year-old tenant farmer was lodged in jail here today on a charge of hurling his three young daughters to their deaths in a well at their tenant farm home.

The farmer, Gene Scales, according to an account given sheriff's deputies by his wife, Ruth Louise, suddenly shouted Monday night that "Jesus says we got to go," then cast the children into the well

Scales followed them in, the wife said, and could be heard praying, shouting and singing. He later pulled himself out. The victims were Dorothy, 8, Grace, 6, and Alice 2.

RAIL PAY HIKE DEMAND LOOMS

Union Officials Hint 1947 Wage Drive Will Open Next Month.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — Rail union officials said today that the 1947 wage drive of the nation's railroad workers may be launched next month in Cleveland.

Leaders of the five operating brotherhoods tentatively are planning a conference in the Ohio city about mid-February to draw up demands, including one for a general pay boost.

The operating unions — engineers, firemen, conductors, switchmen and signalmen—represent some 350,000 railroad workers in active service.

Discussions also are in progress among the 14 non-operating brotherhoods — representing another million rail workers—for a new wage movement. No date has yet been set for a joint meeting of this group.

Even the "big five" operating unions will not get down to actual negotiations with the carriers until May at the earliest.

Their first step will be to hold the general conference in Cleveland of the wage committees of the five brotherhoods and draft joint proposals.

Frisco Cable Cars on Way To Junk Pile

SAN FRANCISCO—(UP)—San Francisco plans to scrap its colorful, historic antiques, the city-owned cable cars, in favor of twin-engined motor buses.

City officials announced today that the cable car must yield San Francisco's hills because they are too expensive to operate and they are dangerous.

Rails, a special kind which no longer are being manufactured, are worn dangerously thin and cables, hemp rope stranded with steel, are hard to get, officials said. Gripmen are aging and younger men just don't want to work on the tiny cars.

The famed Powell street and the Washington-Jackson runs are operated by the municipal railway. Beginning next month, these cables won't run on Sunday when the buses are expected to arrive. Later the buses will be used in the evening.

The Sunday bus runs were planned as a "softening" treatment for cable car lovers. Municipal railway officials hoped that gradually people will get used to the buses and won't object when the cables finally are removed.

Taber Forecasts 5 Billion Dollar Cut

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The joint congressional budget committee whetted its economy axe today with a GOP spokesman forecasting a cut of at least five billion dollars in President Truman's 1948 budget.

The forecast was made by Rep. Taber (R) N. Y., chairman of the house appropriations committee and the budget group.

VAUGHN HINTS HE'LL ENTER MAY PRIMARY

Kelley, Bradford, Anderson, Shultz, Troll to Run; Dems Draft Ticket.

Mayor Roy W. Vaughn and six other city officials joined in an "I'll tell you later" theme today to the question: Will you be a candidate in the May 6 municipal primary?

Another five of Mansfield's elective officials came forward with a flat "yes", a sixth said he "will run if the people want me."

One, First Ward Councilman Russell Porch, a veteran member of city council, replied with a determined "no."

Porch, in declaring himself out of the running said, "the pressure of work in both my private employment and council is such that I can no longer do justice to two jobs. Therefore, I will not be a candidate for council this year."

* * *

Served 12 Years.

At the end of this year Porch will have served as a councilman for 12 years, and as chairman of councils finance committee for six years. He is manager of the Harrington Manufacturing company.

Sixth Ward Councilman Nelson Swihart, completing his first term in office said: "If the people of my ward want me, I will run again."

Vaughn, in a statement for the News-Journal today, indicated that he probably will run. He said, "chances are I will run but I haven't definitely decided yet." He said he would "make a definite statement in a few days."

Joining the mayor in the "undecided" theme were; City Solicitor Leslie K. Wagner, Democrat; Third Ward Councilman Clifford Knarr, Republican; Fourth Ward Councilman Michael Mihalick, Democrat; Fifth Ward Councilman Fred Miller, Democrat and Councilman-at-Large Charles O. Anglin, Democrat and Harry J. Hollingsworth, Republican.

MORE

Paul Bush, a former Sixth ward councilman, has been mentioned as a possible candidate for council again. He said today, however, that he had no comment to make concerning his candidacy. Bush was defeated for the Sixth ward post by Nelson Swihart in 1945.

Commenting on Vaughn's candodacy, Ralph M. Hardy, chairman of the Richland county Republican executive committee said "We're very much interested in Roy running again. He has done a good job."

Hardy said that he and members of the GOP central and executive committees will meet to help fill the ticket if not enough candidates file voluntarily. Chairman of the central committee is James V. Will.

* * *

List Due Tomorrow.

Chairman of the county Democratic central committee, George W. Biddle, said, "we have discussed candidates among ourselves and hope to have a list by tomorrow."

He said the committee aims "to have a complete ticket for mayor, solicitor, auditor, treasurer and councilmen"

BUS TERRORISTS ON WAY TO OSR

IRONTON —(INS)— The Griffith brothers, Hobart and Halph, were on their way to the Mansfield reformatory today.

Both of the Wheelwright, Ky., brothers pleaded guilty to charges of terrorizing Greyhound bus passengers on Jan. 2 between Ironton and Whellersburg.

Hobart received a 3-to-20 year term for assault with a deadly weapon. Ralph was given one to 15 years for assault with intent to kill.

Story Gives Data On New Garbage Plan

Mansfield's new garbage and trash collection will go into effect about March 1, Al Strachan, city sanitation superintendent, announced today.

A story of how the streamlined system will operate and what subscribers will have to do to meet requirements appears on Page 3 of today's News-Journal.

Ugh! Paleface Puzzled

WASHINGTON—(UE)—When is an Indian an Indian and if so—woo! woo!—should you count him when he isn't, but thinks he is? Or is he?

These questions have the palefaces snarling at each other. The U. S. census bureau, which operates out of the commerce department and isn't much interested in psychiatry, says there are alive today 333,000 Indians, including papooses.

The Indian bureau, which is part of the interior department and which knows all about psychology, says there are 393,000 Indians. The figures of the rival nose counters leave 60,000 ghostly Indians flitting around the reservation, eating three meals per day.

"And causing considerable confusion in my mind," sighed Sen. William Langer of N. D., chairman of the civil affairs committee.

"But there are Indians and then, well, there are Indians," patiently explained William Zimmerman, acting Indian commissioner.

"Huh?" asked Langer.

"Oh, yes," Zimmerman said. "It depends on how he thinks."

"Who thinks?" asked Langer.

"The Indian thinks," Zimmerman said. "Being an Indian is a matter of psychology as much as of blood."

* * *

LANGER OPENED his mouth. Then he shut it again. Zimmerman said an Indian-thinking Indian is an Indian and should be counted even if he's only part Indian. But a non-Indian-thinking part Indian, of course, is not an Indian.

"Of course?" asked Langer.

"Of course," Zimmerman replied.

The way Zimmerman explained it, if a part-blood Indian considers himself an Indian, then the Indian bureau counts him. Otherwise, it doesn't.

"Once an Indian always an Indian as far as the Indian bureau is concerned," observed Sen. C. Douglas Buck of Del. "Tell me, is the Indian population on the increase or on the decrease?"

"Increasing," said Zimmerman.

"Then it'll be a long time before we get rid of the Indian bureau," Sen. Buck predicted.

The committeemen got into a discussion of Uncle Sam as an Indian Santa Claus. They wondered how come three generations of Indians educated in schools of Zimmerman's bureau still weren't educated enough to manage their own affairs and pay taxes like other people.

* * *

THE PINK-FACED Zimmerman had an answer for every question; each one etched Sen. Langer's scowl a little deeper. Finally Langer exploded:

"We will ask the questions and you will answer them directly. You do not seem to realize that the time has come for the bureaucrats to quit running the senate. The senate from now on intends to run the bureaus. Now answer the questions."

Zimmerman's replies still did not satisfy the senators and Langer then did an unprecedented thing. He ordered his clerk to serve a subpoena on Zimmerman, who interrupted his testimony to accept it.

"Now Mr. Zimmerman," Langer said, "you are our witness, instead of the interior department's. I am going to swear you (he did so) and you are not representing anybody but yourself. Now we want facts on how to reduce expenses of the Indian bureau."

Zimmerman gulped. The committee gave him until Tuesday to turn up with answers.

FDR Rough On Labor?

ON A RECENT tour of duty in Washington, I inquired further into the late Franklin D. Roosevelt's financial interest in coal mines and company towns called Graceton and Vintondale, Pa. which officials of the United Mine Workers have described as feudal communities in the years prior to the first of Roosevelt's labor boards. These are properties of the Delano family. Frederic Delano, an uncle of the late president was, at last reports and had been for many years, the directing head of the company. A man in high authority in the United Mine Workers states with out qualification that Mrs. Sara Delano Roosevelt, the sister of Frederic and the mother of Franklin, had a large and, for a long time, very profitable interest in the mines. I found no authority who was able to say flatly that President Roosevelt, himself, was one of the owners but there is a letter in existence from Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, written on White House stationery in June, 1942, in which she said: "My husband sold all interest in these holdings." I take that to mean that he was one of the owners at one time.

Still, I wanted to learn whether the bad conditions at Graceton and Vintondale, the sort of company feudalism that both the late president and his wife so feelingly deplored in their castigations of greedy and heartless absentees, actually existed at a time when Mr. Roosevelt was a mature man and in a position to oppose the sort of oppression that he publicly condemned.

* * *

MY INFORMANT at the United Mine Workers said that if it was in my mind to excuse him on the ground that all this took place when he was a child or a young man, I could just forget that. These conditions continued, he said, throughout the years when Roosevelt was governor of New York and into the second year of his first term as president. He made no initiative move to reform them even then. John L. Lewis forced the reforms.

The United Mine Workers had never been able to organize the miners well enough to present a strong front against the Delano family. They had struck these mines in 1914, 1916, 1919 and 1920 but had lost every time.

In 1934, however, when the first of Roosevelt's collective bargaining laws was tried, word was flashed to the organizers in Pennsylvania to move in, and organize the miners.

An organizer did start into Graceton immediately but was met at the town limits by armed guards who tried to drive him away. He then telephoned the national headquarters of the U.M.W. in Washington, requesting instructions. John L. Lewis, instructed him to warn the local executives of the Delano property that if he was not admitted to the town and permitted to recruit union members within two hours, he, Lewis, would issue a public statement.

* * *

IT IS SURMISED that the company executives got in touch with Uncle Frederic Delano at his office in the state department, where he held the title of chairman of the National Resources Planning board, and that he passed the word to let down the bar. At any rate, the organizer walked in, the miners joined the union and Lewis never had to issue a statement which would have depicted President Roosevelt's own family as an uncommonly rough and inept labor.

None of Roosevelt's biographers, whether affectionate or objective, has ever discussed the family's ownership of these properties and the company's conduct in relation to the workers. My view is that historians, who one day will try to evaluate Roosevelt for the permanent record, will be frustrated and that his historical character will be falsified if only the perfunctory information and the tributes of his proteges are left available for study. Mrs. Sara Roosevelt's income from these mines and company stores contributed to the luxurious life that her son enjoyed until he was elected president. He inherited most of her wealth. The version of conditions and events offered by the United Mine Workers invites any rebuttal that any surviving relative or friend is able to offer. Thus far no exception has been taken by any of them.

TEST SCHEDULED FOR APPLICANTS TO HEAD HOME

Positions of Superintendent and Matron Are Open.

An open competitive civil service examination of applicants for the superintendency of the Richland county home will be held at the courthouse March 7 at 9 a. m., the Ohio Civil Service commission announced today.

The examination is to provide a list of qualified candidates for the post left vacant by the resignation of Supt. Grover C. Dickson.

Open only to legal residents of Richland county, the examination will be given on the basis of applications filed with the commission not later than 5 p. m., March 3, Carl W. Smith, chairman of the commission, said.

Salary of $125 Monthly.

The successful applicant will receive $125 per month and maintenance. The position requires the candidate to have had at least five years of practical farm experience and to have "sufficient executive ability to manage the business affairs and to supervise employes" and to present evidence of ability to look after the comfort and welfare of elderly people.

"The conditions of employment in this position are such that it is desirable that the wife of the superintendent or person of blood relationship be employed as matron," the commission's bulletin states.

Matron Paid $100.

"Subject to the provision of the law, the matron is appointed by the superintendent and receives a salary of $100 a month," is says.

The matron's position also will be vacated April 15, effective date of Dickson's resignation, as a result of Mrs. Dickson's resignation.

Application blanks and additional information on the examination are available at the county auditor's office.

FUMES MISHAP BRINGS CHANGES

Fire Chief L. J. Steele said today that he had suggested certain alterations at the Burgess Dry Cleaning plant, 41 South Diamond street. He said the suggestions were made after he learned that three residents at 41½ South Diamond street, might have been overcome by fumes from the cleaning establishment last Thursday.

The victims, Mr. and Mrs. John Gossom and Mrs. Gossom's mother, Mrs. Harry Stalter, were found unconscious by Dr. B. E. Shreffler and sent to the hospital. Dr. Shreffler, who called at the Gossom home on a routine visit, said the three appeared to have been overcome by gas fumes and may have taken sedatives before the gas seeped into their apartment.

However, Mrs. Stalter told The News-Journal today that none of the three had taken any sedatives. She blamed fumes which she said had leaked through from the cleaning plant below.

"It is my opinion that the three were not overcome by sedatives," Chief Steele said. "But by fumes from the dry cleaning establishment or from some bad stoves in the Gossom home. I can't say.

"There was a gas heater under the water tank in the Gossom home without a stack and there is a possibility that the stack on the boiler of the dry cleaning place could have been a little small. There was a deposit of fumes in the building, but I am not sure where it came from."

FARM INSTITUTE OPENS FRIDAY

The Butler township Farmers Institute, one of the two scheduled this year in the county, will open Friday at 1 p. m., and sessions will be held through Saturday, A. J. Huston, president, announced today.

Speakers will include Joseph R. Thomas, Hayesville, and Mrs. Marjorie Comer, Richland county girls juvenile officer.

At 8 p. m. Saturday the Ganges Grange will present a three-act play entitled "Hobgoblin House".

Entertainment also will be provided by the Butler township grade school.

The Saturday morning session will open at 9:30 and the session Saturday afternoon at 1:30 p. m.

Officers of the institute, in addition to Huston, are Raymond Landis, vice president; Melvin M. Yoha, secretary, and Oris Huston, woman correspondent.

The executive committee is composed of J. Blaine Forbes, Leo Fair and Marion Taylor.

FLOATING ICE CREAM PARLOR HELPED MILLER FINANCE CAREER AS EDUCATOR

By KEN WOODMAN
(News-Journal Executive Editor)

This is the story of how to become a school superintendent the hard way. It concerns W. L. Miller who has headed Mansfield's public schools for 12 years. But it begins on the old excursion steamer Tashmoo which plied between Detroit and Port Huron.

Miller ran the largest lunch counter and ice cream parlor on that boat, during his summers, to earn money to go to college. It was not just a lark. It was a serious business.

"When I went to Muskingum college in the autumn," Miller recalls, "I knew exactly how much money I had to last me through the year. I had earned it and it had to last. I also had to pick up enough money during the school year to pay my fare back to Detroit when school was out and to keep me for a week until my first check come through on the Tashmoo."

Miller confesses that he found out "where you could get the biggest plate of beans for five cents in Detroit" and that he ate there to make his funds last.

While at college he ran a boarding house. An attractive young co-ed from Carrollton ate there. Some years later she became Mrs. Miller.

"I'll never know," says her husband, "whether she married me because she liked my cooking or because she wanted to improve it."

The Millers, who live at 490 Park Avenue west, have one daughter, Mrs. D. R. Barnes. She now is assistant director of education at the Dayton Museum of Art.

* * *

IT'S QUITE A JUMP from Park Avenue west to the old National Turnpike at St. Clairsville, Ohio, especially if you go by way of Columbia and Harvard universities. That's the route Miller took.

His father was a miller by trade as well as by name. And the superintendent can remember holding a lantern at night as a boy of eight or 10 in St. Clairsville while his father dressed the stone burrs that ground the meal. Often he was up before dawn to help haul the mill's produce to Bridgeport. It was an all-day trip then.

"Now," says Miller, "you can drive it in a matter of minutes."

The Millers kept a toll gate on the pike.

"The toll was a cent per mile per horse," Miller says, "and I remember the trouble we used to have with gypsies. We'd pull down the gate as soon as we saw them coming. Frequently we'd have to hold them all day until we could get the sheriff to force them to pay their toll."

* * *

MILLER SAW stone breakers, later on, cracking up the giant chunks of limestone that had been used in the road to make a base for the new motor highway that now runs coast to coast as U. S. 40.

When Miller's father died the son was just 12 and the middle one of five children who all pitched in to keep the family going.

"It was a privilege to work in those days," he says. Every boy was proud to have a job. I bought all of my own clothing from the time I was 12."

In high school Miller helped organize and was captain of the first basketball team at St. Clairsville.

* * *

HE CARRIED this interest in sports along to Muskingum where he played basketball under "Greasy" Neale who later became a well-known professional. He took it along on his first teaching job, too, at Dalton between Wooster and Massillon.

First, he was principal there, then superintendent. But he coached both girls' and boys' basketball.

"And," he says, "I think the girls could beat the boys!"

(Possibly at this period in his life Miller was prejudiced in favor of the other sex. It was at Dalton that he married the girl who had eaten at his college boarding house.)

* * *

THE MILLERS WENT from Dalton, where their daughter was born, to Freedom, Pa. There he started work on his master's degree. This work continued after Miller came to Willard where he supervised the completion of a new high school and the building of an athletic field.

In January 1929 he went to Chillicothe, driving between there and Pittsburgh once a month to complete his master's degree at the university of Pittsburgh.

In the ensuing summers Miller took special courses in education at Columbia and New York universities. At the latter school he concentrated on studies in guidance. Mansfield's public school guidance and testing programs under Dr. Edwin A. Fensch and Principal Jesse A. Beer are a direct outgrowth of this study.

* * *

AT HARVARD and the University of Chicago Miller studied school finance—an important item when you consider that Mansfield's public schools represent a capital investment of $5,000,000 and this year have a budget of $1,133,000.

Miller came to Mansfield in 1935 from Chillicothe where he supervised completion of a million dollar building program that included a new high school and stadium and remodeling of the old high school building into a junior high.

Since Miller's arrival here the city has erected two new junior high schools, John Simpson and Johnny Appleseed; Woodland elementary school has been built; shops have been added at the high school; and a $2,000,000 new elementary school and renovation program will soon be under way.

* * *

HOWEVER, MILLER does not look at education as all buildings and books. He sees education as any experience that trains one for doing the useful job he has set as his goal in life. This belief can be illustrated from Miller's own experience.

After leaving high school he went to work in the Aetna Standard steel mills at Martin's Ferry. There he learned to use a micrometer.

During the building program at Chillicothe a number of steel lockers were ordered. Miller told the salesman: "These lockers must be up to specifications."

"Of course," said the surprised salesman, "what are you talking about?"

"Well," retorted Miller, "your samples are not." He scraped off a bit of paint, got out a micrometer and proved his point.

"When the lockers arrived they were up to specifications," Miller grins.

* * *

MILLER WORKED as a carpenter's helper in his youth and now he is proud of renovation he has done in his home on Park avenue west, although he gives Mrs. Miller complete credit for the redecoration.

Mansfield's superintendent of schools can hang a room of wallpaper, too, if he has to. But those are only sidelights to his outspoken philosophy of education. He says:

"There is no easy road to good education. Along the way we may have to revise our goals, but we must never relax our determination to reach good goals. The theory that education can be all play and no work is a false philosophy."

Library Plans Book Mobile Purchase to Expand Service

A 10 per cent gain in county book circulation, establishment of a complete professional staff and approval of building plans to enlarge the Mansfield Public Library, were the highlights of 1946, listed in the annual report to the library's board of trustees yesterday.

Plans for the year ahead include the purchase of a bookmobile for extension work and the working out of details for the building program.

The report, prepared by Miss Lois MacKellar, head librarian, showed an over-all gain of 10,000 books circulated over 1945. Six thousand of these books went to county branches, book stations and were circulated by the book truck.

Breakdown of the circulated books showed a 4,000 gain from the main library, city branches and stations. Main library circulation reached 99,398 books; city branches, 50,775, and city stations 34,909.

Election of officers and appointment of committees was not taken up at the annual meeting since William M. Weldon, president, Robert S. Gibson, treasurer, and William Althouse, board member, are in Florida.

Miss MacKellar said she did not expect an election of officers until March.

Increase in circulation was also reported at the Newman school branch and at Senior high school. Newman's total of 16,617 circulation showed a 3,466 increase over 1945, and Senior high's 12,200 circulation was 600 books over the previous year.

Circulation in the 11 county branches totaled 55,423, more than 10 per cent gain over 1945's total of 49,071. Stations served are Bellville, Plymouth, Shiloh, Butler, Olivesburg, Ganges, Pavonia, Lexington, Lucas, Ontario. County library is Mrs. John Mine here in July as children's librarian. We're hoping now for a pick-up in circulation.

Miss MacKellar added that Miss Nancy Bullock, assistant to the staff, will leave this week to enroll in Ohio State university at Columbus. She will be replaced by Miss Ann Loughridge who has previously worked on the library staff.

Remodeling of the library, approved by passage of a $2,111,000 bond issue more than a year ago, has not been started due to building restrictions, high cost of material and labor and generally unstable conditions, Miss MacKellar said. She added that the plans for additions to and remodeling work on the present building have been approved by Chalmers Hadley, former Cincinnati librarian and authority on library buildings.

"During 1946 there was an almost complete turnover in staff," Miss MacKellar said. "Our children's room showed a circulation loss until Miss Eva Leonard came

HOUR WITH HOME FOLKS—

For an hour Monday night, Ricardo Camache, one of the eight young Mexican engineers here for study with the Westinghouse corporation, talked to his mother and brothers in Mexico City over the short wave radio set at the home of Dr. Herbert S. Garnes. Dr. Garnes, an expert amateur radio operator, had contacted the short wave station, XE 1 SE, owned by a wealthy physician in Mexico City Sunday night and asked him to have Camache's mothers and brothers at his home Monday night. Although Dr. Garnes couldn't understand a word that was being said between Camache and his family, the conversation seemed entirely satisfactory, he said. Last week, Dr. Garnes made contact with a similar short wave station in Belgium and he has a standing order for a call to Casablanca.

NAVY COMES THROUGH—

True to it's tradition the navy came "sailing through" in an "emergency" last night. When their scheduled speaker was suddenly unable to appear, the Commercial Bowling league, meeting at the Mansfield-Leland hotel, found itself without a speaker. Mayor Roy W. Vaughn, who was a guest at the dinner, came to the rescue. He sent out an "emergency call" to navy speakers at the Co-operative club dinner in the club room of the hotel. Lt. Cmdr. A. E. Heiser, in charge of the Mansfield "Naval Reserve week" program, answered the call in full dress uniform.

MARCH OF DIMES FAR FROM GOAL

The March of Dimes advanced only $185.25 yesterday to a total so far of $531.75 toward its $6,000 goal. This leaves $5,468.25 to be raised before the Jan. 30 deadline. Marshall C. Moore, secretary of the local drive committee, said today that returns had not come in as well as in past years. He urged prompt and generously contributions so that it might not be said that "too little was given too late."

Latest donors of $5 and more were reported as: Martin Steel Products company, $50; Shelley Candy company, $25; Hartman Electric Manufacturing company, J. M. Cousins, Mary L. "I wonder if Admiral Byrd has changed much!"

CITY WOULD BE LINK IN DEFENSE PLAN

Council Expected to Give Program Its Approval Next Month.

An Air National Guard proposal to base the 164th Fighter squadron at Mansfield's airport received a tentative go-ahead signal yesterday at a meeting of city and National Guard officials at the Sky club.

Official acceptance of the plan, however, must await action by city council Feb. 14, Mayor Roy W. Vaughn said.

The Air Guard unit would mean that 450 enlisted men and officers with annual earnings of $400,000 would be brought to the city, Col. Lamont Saxton, senior air instructor of the Air National Guard, told the group yesterday.

The unit would man 35 planes, including P-47s, AT-6s, A-26s, C-47s, and L-5s. It would be a part of a vast air national defense system which could go into action promptly in the event of an emergency.

Attached the the 164th Fighter squadron will be an FM relay team assigned from the Aircraft Warning squadron, Air National Guard, expected to be based at Toledo, Saxton said.

* * *

City In Strategic Spot.

Mansfield has been selected as the base for the 164th Fighter squadron in preference to other larger cities, because of its strategic location. It's only a 40-minute trip from Mansfield or from Dayton to the Lockbourne air base near Columbus, Col. Saxton said.

The Guard plans to locate the 162nd Fighter squadron at Dayton and the two units can easily be formed at Lockbourne air base with the 166th Fighter squadron based there, during a two-hour maneuver period without consuming much time en route. Col Saxton pointed out.

Already being organized is the 166th Fighter squadron at Columbus and a Bomber squadron at Cleveland Still to be organized are the 162nd Fighter squadron at Dayton and the Aircraft Warning squadron at Toledo, Saxton explained.

"I think we should feel honored to have been selected," commented Alan P. Tappan who had been asked to attend the meeting in an advisory capacity by Mayor Vaughn.

"We are back of the plan 100 per cent and will do everything we can to aid the recruiting drive for the organization," John G. Routzon, secretary-manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said.

Immediate need of the Air National Guard is to secure a lease to a plot of ground approximately 100 by 200 feet, Saxton said.

* * *

Need Hangar Space.

The Guard has money to purchase hangars, but can't erect them, thus the city would have to bear this expense, the Guard officer said. However, hangar space is needed for only about six planes and that space would be utilized more for maintenance, Saxton explained.

Four administration buildings approximately 20 by 60 feet would be moved here and the Guard would also erect and man a control tower.

The city would benefit by having the unit here since, if it is needed, the organization would be provided with snow clearing equipment, Saxton said. Such equipment is a must when commercial airlines begin winter operation through municipal airport, he pointed out.

* * *

Guard Shares Cost.

The Guard would be willing to share in the cost of maintenance of the port on the basis of the number of landings and take-offs and the weight of the planes, officers said.

On the basis of city officials' assurance that a lease would be forthcoming, Col. Saxton was expected to put machinery in motion, following his return to Columbus yesterday, to obtain early delivery of equipment at municipal airport after the lease is signed.

Under the program, pilots will be authorized to fly 180 hours a year and the enlisted training program would provide for rapid rating advancements.

In addition to the FM relay team, a teletypewriter network between the units would be maintained. The Fighter squadron would also provide its own weather officers and enlisted personnel.

Area Cubs Receive Awards of Merit

Two area Cub packs featured advancement awards at meetings held last night. Cub Pack No. 3 of Mansfield had a combination charter night, covered dish dinner celebration at Prospect Park pavilion. O. H. Sprang, cubmaster, presided.

At Shelby, Cubmaster J. W. Armstrong, presented advancement awards to Gordon Shaw, Duane Seaton, and Dick Raymond, members of Cub Pack No. 3 meeting in Shelby high school.

CAR MAKERS PLAN HEAVY '47 EXPORTS

Half-Million Overseas Quota of New Cars, Commercial Vehicles Predicted.

By DAVID J. WILKIE
(AP Automobile Editor)

DETROIT—(AP)—The American automobile industry may ship a quarter of a million new passenger cars and only slightly fewer commercial vehicles abroad this year.

In passenger car exports the industry has topped that volume only once in the last 16 years; in 1937 it shipped 272,503 units to overseas markets. The highest volume of motor truck exports in the same period was 203,411, also in 1937.

The estimate of this year's overseas shipments is based on what now appears to be a fairly good prospect that American car and truck plants will turn out 4,000,000 passenger and 1,000,000 commercial vehicles and maintain the current level of exports.

* * *

329,507 In 1946.

Last year, out of a total production of 2,155,674 passenger cars and 940,553 commercial vehicles the nation's automotive industry exported 141,507 cars and slightly more than 188,000 trucks.

While the commerce department has lifted restrictions on the overseas shipment of new trucks, the wartime limitations on passenger car exports still are effective and trade circles generally expect them to continue through June 30 when the controls act expires.

The relaxation of regulations on the export of used cars, it develops, is something of an experiment to be cancelled should it prove unsatisfactory. Inasmuch as only recognized exporters will be permitted to step up shipments under the order no great outpouring of used cars into the overseas market is expected.

A limitation of approximately 5,000 units a month also has been decided upon, and they must be cars made prior to 1945.

It is understood the regulations will be tightened up again or further relaxed after March 1, depending upon the effects of the current modification.

* * *

Regulations Unopposed.

American car makers are said to be disinclined now to push for further modification of new car export regulations as long as domestic demand remains so far from satisfied. Every automobile manufacturer, however, has kept the closest watch on foreign demand for motor transportation and considers the re-establishment of the industry's overseas trade as of the utmost importance.

The American Automobile industry's big export business in 1937 yielded $243,597,000 for passenger cars and trucks and an additional $122,364,000 for parts and accessories. With higher basic unit prices these figures should be exceeded this year if overall production schedules are realized.

* * *

Materials Needed.

But, according to industry heads, much more than dollar profits is involved in the rebuilding of their export business. The industry has to depend solely upon foreign sources for a considerable variety of materials needed in car construction. In addition, with increased demand throughout all industry for raw materials from domestic markets the car makers have to supplement their available supplies with imported materials.

Among the imports are such items as chromite for rust-resistance finishes, chromium plating and stainless steel engine parts; nickel, tin, lead, vanadium and many other metals.

It is estimated, too, that the car industry's overseas operations provides employment in automotive manufacturing alone for 100,000 workers.

MADISON ROMPS TO NINTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

Cuff Stuff

By Fred Tharp

OHIO HIGH school track and field teams can really get their fill of relays this spring. . . . From the looks of things the Buckeye relay situation is mushrooming faster than bowl games. . . . There are now 27 on the docket and back when our famous Mansfield relays were started there were only two.

Coach Harry Mehock's thinclads will probably compete in the Ohio Wesleyan, Cleveland East Tech, Mansfield and either the Toledo DeVilbiss or Newark events.

The third annual Rubber city basketball tournament will be staged in Akron, March 19-23.... Thirty-two trophies will be awarded. . . . Mansfield teams can get entry blanks by writing Jake Bauman, 1106 Wooster avenue, Akron 7, Ohio. . . . Frankie Baumholtz, the Cleveland Rebel pro basketball hotshot, is listed as the No. 1 candidate for center field on the 1947 Cincinnati Reds' roster. . . . The ex-Ohio university star batted .343 for Columbia of the Sally league last year.

JOE NUXHALL, Hamilton athlete, has gotten another clean bill of health from the Ohio high school athletic association. . . . Lefty Joe is one of the few athletes to regain amateur status after participating in professional sports.

He pitched during the 1945 season for Lima in the Ohio State league and then returned to Hamilton high school.

Nuxhall laid off sports for a year to again become a simon pure and is now regarded as one of the finest scholastic athletes in Ohio. . . . He starred in football and is now pacing Hamilton's Big Blue on the cage court. . . . The latest crisis was precipitated when Syracuse offered Nuxhall a contract for the '47 season.

DISSA AND DATA: Have a ticket or stay at home. . . . Tis a warning for fans planning to attend the Mansfield-Ashland basketball game Friday night at Ashland. . . . Ashland authorities say that there will be no tickets sold at the gate. . . . There are still a few adult ducats left at Senior high school.

Bill Veeck, colorful president of the Cleveland Indians, will be honored as Cleveland's "Baseball Man of the Year" at a testimonial dinner, April 17.

A majority (55 per cent) of sports editors and writers polled by the United Press agree that the recent gambling scandals threatens the foundations of intercollegiate sports as well as professional athletics. . . . They believe that the new anti-gambling legislation is a step in the right direction. . . . Nearly 300 fighters will participate in the annual Cleveland Golden Gloves tournament.

Cardington Quint Replaces Marengo As County Leader

MT. GILEAD—Chesterville's 49 to 41 upset of Marengo last week knocked the Wildcats from the Morrow county league lead for the first time this season. Cardington, winner over Iberia, moved into the first place spot with a record of seven wins and one defeat.

The loss was the second for Marengo during the entire season and gives them a record of eight and two in the county league and 14 and two for all games played.

What may prove to be the deciding game of the league race will be played Friday night at Marengo with the Cardington Pirates furnishing the opposition.

Marengo's only other defeat came at the hands of Cardington earlier in the season by a score of 36 to 34 and was protested by Marengo school officials. The protest was not allowed by the State High School Athletic Commissioner.

Other games this week include: Friday, Iberia at Chesterville; Sparta at Johnsville, and Marysville at Mt. Gilead.

CRESTLINE 5 FALLS BEFORE RAMS, 42 TO 32

Pritchard and Eldridge Tally 13 Points Apiece.

By BRUCE M'GINTY

Mansfield Madison extended its winning streak to nine straight by annihilating a strong Crestline Bulldog combine 42 to 32 last night on the Madison court.

The Bulldogs proved one of the toughest teams to come up against the Rams.

Eldon Pritchard and Herb Eldridge each tallied 13 points to set the pace for Madison. Dick Ernsberger scored five field goals and two foul shots for 12 Ram points.

Slow Start.

Coach Jeff DeHaven's Madison quintet got off to a slow start and clung to a 10 to 8 lead at the end of the first period. The Rams led 22 to 18 at the intermission and found their stride in the third quarter to gain a 29 to 21 margin.

Towering Crestline Captain Jack Malaby caused trouble for the Rams in the early part of the game by commanding the backboards. However, he picked up three fouls in that period and remained on the bench the bigger part of the next three periods.

Going into the second half the game got a little out of control and the officials were forced to call 10 fouls and one technical on the Bulldogs. Altogether 15 fouls were called on the Crestline team

Idle the remainder of the week Madison goes into the toughest part of its 1946-47 cage schedule next week. Ashland, Shelby, Willard, Lucas and Mt. Gilead are yet to come.

Coach Bill Kopcial's Madison reserve team knocked out a 21 to 13 victory over the Crestline reserves. Forward Ray Bader scored 10 points for the Rams.

Shelby, OPS Head 'Y' Play

The Shelby Merchants meet Ohio Public Service five in the No. 1 classic in the YMCA Commercial B league at the Y court tonight.

Undefeated Shelby is leading the B loop with six victories. The Servicemen have won five of their six starts to tie Phalanx for the second spot. The Merchants-Service tilt opens play at 7.

Dominion Electric collides with Mansfield Tire in the second contest and Westinghouse meets Mansfield Printing five in the third fracas. Phalanx meets Brodie's Cigar store in the final tussle.

Bellville Defeats Freddies, 30 to 29

BELLVILLE—Coach Orv Kibler's Bellville cagers withstood a fourth quarter rally to defeat Fredericktown, 30 to 29, here last night. Bellville led 24 to 19 at the start of the final eight minutes. The Bellville reserves won the prelim, 21 to 12.

3 Teams Share Top Honors In Church League

St. Luke's and Ontario Community cage teams gained a first place tie with idle Park Avenue Baptist in the YMCA Senior church league last night. Each team has won five games and lost one.

Ontario Community had to go into an extra period before knocking off First Lutheran 27 to 23. At the end of the regulation period the score was 23 to 23. Smith who tallied 11 points picked up the important four points in the overtime on bunny shots.

St. Luke's crushed First Presbyterian 37 to 25. St. Luke's grabbed a 17 to 11 lead at halftime. Dave Wentz tallied 11 points for the winning combine.

Bob Meeker scored 18 points to lead the Central M. E. to a 37 to 25 victory over Mayflower.

Ashland Takes Ninth Straight

ASHLAND — Ashland's sizzling Taylor Tots racked up their ninth consecutive victory here last night.

The Ashland cagers romped around and over a strong Barberton aggregation to win a somewhat easy, 51 to 39, decision. The only thing easy about the game was the score as both teams put on one of the roughest exhibitions of basketball seen here in years.

Ashland led by Dick Messner and Dave Burns was in the van by quarters, 16 to 8, 27 to 16 and 38 to 28. Messner had 16 and Burns 17.

Mansfield invades the local court Friday night for the 70th cage meeting between the two schools.

The fight was called off because of a "cold" in Rocky's back last Dec. 27.—(International)

Beveragemen Try for No. 6

Richland Beverage will be out to regain a first place tie with Smokehouse and Komito's Clothiers in the first division of the City A league at the Senior high gym tonight.

The Beveragemen collide with American Legion Post 72 in the last game. Beverage has won five of its six contests while the Legionnaires have won only one of seven games.

Barnes Manufacturing and Urschel Insurance will be trying to pull away from a three way tie with Yunckers for the top spot in the second division. Each team has won four of their seven tilts.

Barnes is favored over the Ohio Sports Center in the initial game at 7. Urschel's will be out to whip McCarrick's Gulf in the second fracas. McCarrick's have won three of their seven games.

Harry Hart Fights

AKRON —(AP)— Harry Hart of Columbus, claimant of the Ohio junior lightweight title will meet Cleveland's Leo Garrett tonight in the 10-round headliner of a pro boxing show.

4 Mansfield Boxers Signed For Pro Bouts

Four Mansfield battlers will appear on the benefit professional boxing card in the Mansfield Armory on Feb. 6.

Joe Brown, light-heavy, and Dick Alexander, welter, will go in the two eight-round bouts while Gale Frye, lightweight, and Chuck Albrecht, heavyweight, have been signed for prelim contests.

Brown meets the old-heavyweight campaigner Mose Brown, in Pittsburgh, the feature affair while Alexander will be gunning for his 10th straight win against Charley Cox, Huntington, W. Va. Dick has won eight decisions in the Mansfield ring.

Frye, who has won both of his Mansfield starts, gets a crack at Al Ingraham, Huntington, in a six rounder while Albrecht tangles with Tommy Pitt, Canton, in his pro debut here three weeks ago.

George Day, Massillon, meets Al Letter, Akron, in the four-round curtain raiser.

Proceeds of the show, which is being sponsored by the Mansfield bartenders, will go to Roger Rucker, Mansfield light-heavy. He suffered a fractured jaw in a pro show here, Jan. 9.

Plymouth Wins Over Ontario

ONTARIO—Coach Dick Casad's Ontario quintet was knocked out of a second place tie with Lexington in the Richland county league by Plymouth last night, 56 to 46.

The Plymouth five grabbed a 16 to 15 lead at the beginning of the second period and never dropped behind. Bob Hampton and Cornelius Vanderbilt tallied 14 points each for Plymouth.

It was Ontario's fourth loss in 11 contests and Plymouth's sixth win in 11 starts. Howard Sunnucks scored 16 points as the Ontario reserves won 29 to 21.

Rocky Graziano Says Bribe Offer Was 'Ridiculous'

NEW YORK — (AP) — Middleweight boxer Rocky Graziano will have opportunity Friday to convince the New York Athletic commission that the $100,000 bribe offer he claims to have received was too "ridiculous" to report.

Graziano's chance for a return title bout with Middleweight Champion Tony Zale on March 21 possibly is at stake.

District Attorney Frank S. Hogan, whose investigation of sports contests already has resulted in the conviction of one man and indictment of three others in connection with an attempted "fix" in professional football, disclosed the bribe offer to Graziano.

Graziano told reporters last night that Hogan and his assistants had twisted into something serious his story of being offered a bribe to "throw" his scheduled fight Dec. 27 with Ruben (Cowboy) Shank of Denver, repeating his story of the visit of an unidentified man to his dressing room, Graziano said:

"The thing was so ridiculous I figured the guy was kidding and I kidded back with him.

All America Grid Loop Wants Truce In Pro War

By STEVE SNIDER

NEW YORK—(UP)—The All-America conference indicated today it is ready to call off the pro football war if the National Football league will do the same.

Despite three court victories resulting from player raids by both leagues, the year-old AAC now wants a "live and let live" policy on the theory that there's plenty of room for two major pro football groups.

Reports that Bill Daley may jump from the All-America to the NFL Pittsburgh Steelers put club owners of the new conference in a temporizing mood as they opened the second day of a scheduled three day meeting in which the most urgent business is selection of a new commissioner to replace Jim Crowley.

Respect Contracts.

"We expect to respect the contracts of others," said President Dan Topping of New York's football Yankees. "But we also expect to defend our own contracts and our legal battles with the other league will start all over again if Daley signs with Pittsburgh."

Daley, hard-hitting fullback who played at Minnesota and Michigan, was signed to a two-year contract by the Brooklyn Dodgers last season and later was traded to the Miami club, which folded at the end of the campaign.

The AAC contends that his contract reverted to the commissioner's office and later was assigned properly to the new Baltimore franchise operated by Bob Rodenberg of Washington.

Shortly after Crowley officially submitted his resignation as commissioner to become vice president and coach of the All-America's Chicago entry, the Rockets, the list of candidates for his $25,000 a year job reportedly was narrowed to three.

Chief candidates were believed to be Maj. Gen. Leslie Groves, the atom bomb expert; Capt. Tom Hamilton, Navy football coach, and Coach Lou Little of Columbia.

All league officers were reelected. Carryovers were Topping, vice president; Louis Carroll, New York attorney, secretary, and Bill Cox, Brooklyn general manager, treasurer. The new commissioner will serve as president.

Sophomores Play Ontario Quintet

Mansfield Senior high sophomores will play the Ontario high school team at the Tyger gym Saturday night, Fred Staub, faculty manager of athletics at Senior high school, announced today.

The Ontario-Sophomore contest will be played as a preliminary to the Mansfield-Youngstown Chaney clash. Chaney has won only three of 10 games this season.

80 Bowlers Attend Fete

Eighty members and their guests enjoyed the 25th anniversary banquet of the Women's Commercial A bowling league at the Mansfield-Leland hotel ballroom last night.

Miss Minnie Loudon, president of the first league, was the principal speaker and gave the guests a very interesting resume of the founding of the bowling loop.

Other guests introduced were Mayor Roy Vaughn, who said that some of his best friends were ardent bowlers; Art Hilborn, manager of the Colony Alleys; Carl Phillipon, president of the Men's City bowling association; Harold Selby, secretary of the Men's loop, and Lt. Cmdr. A. E. Heiser, who gave a short talk on the Navy training program in Mansfield.

Mrs. Pauline Shively, president of the Women's City association concluded the program when she presented Mrs. Kay Stirtzinger, present president of the Commercial A league with a 25 year plaque.

John Kramer, Mansfield's oldest bowling enthusiast, was unable to attend.

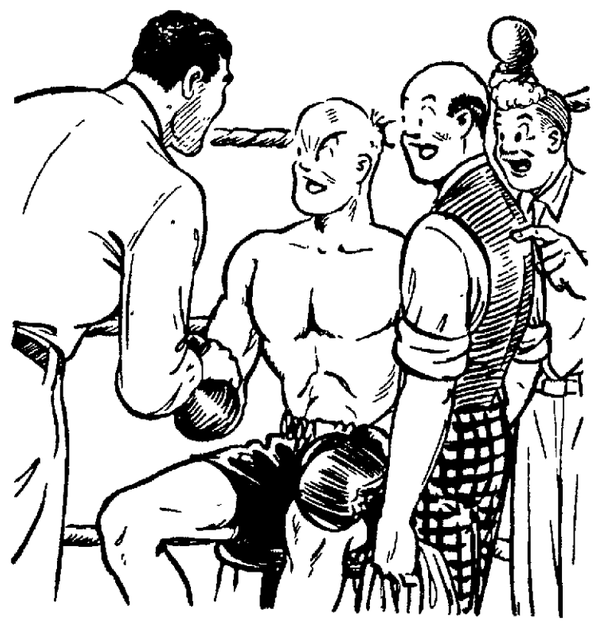
CONGRATULATIONS, JOE!



Acknowledged to be the No. 1 comic today, JOE PALOOKA will become a new member of The News-Journal family, starting Monday, Feb. 3.

Joe is back from the wars and will defend his heavyweight title, but whether he wins or loses he'll always be in there fighting to give you a laugh or a chuckle, and, perhaps, once in a while, a lump in your throat.

NO OTHER COFFEE GIVES YOU...

More Flavor....

and

Of all the coffees sold in the U.S., none offers you more or better flavor than A&P Coffee. That's because A&P Coffee is "flavor-saver" roasted, sold in the bean, then Custom Ground when you buy. There are three delicious blends . . . mild, medium, strong. A&P Coffee is America's most popular coffee by millions of pounds. It's the only coffee that can claim that distinction.

More FOR YOUR Money

Compare coffee prices! You'll find no other coffee gives you more for your money. The reasonable prices of A&P Coffee are the result of great economies in our processing and packaging methods. Remember, you can't buy finer coffee in any package at any price than A&P Coffee.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check off every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

A cop patrolling his beat late one night was surprised to find a man crawling around under a lamppost. He nudged him with with his nightstick. "What are you looking for, my man?" he demanded.

"I lost a half a dollar a couple of blocks down the street," said the man with a suspicious hic in his voice.

"If you lost it two blocks away, why the devil are you looking for it here?" asked the cop.

"The light's better here," ex-

"My friends," said the philosopher to his young listeners, "remember that as you go through life, money is not all. It is not money that will mend a broken heart or reassemble the fragments of a dream. Money cannot brighten the hearth nor repair the portals of a shattered home." He paused for breath and then concluded, "I refer, of course, to Confederate money."

"You brought me the wrong shoes," Van Smythe told the new valet. "Can't you see that one is black and the other brown?" "Sorry, sir," said the valet, "but the other pair is just the same."

Galion Farmer Stricken After Long Illness

GALION — George W. Crawford, 65, whose residence was three miles south of Galion, died Tuesday evening in City hospital. He had been ill for five months, and was admitted to the hospital last Friday.

He was born in Morrow county on May 30, 1881, the son of John W. and Mary Herriman Crawford. His marriage on Sept. 21, 1910, was to Maude E. Bear, who survives.

Besides his widow, he leaves two sons, Wade S. and Vernon Crawford, both at home, and one brother, R. H. Crawford, of Addy, Washington.

Mr. Crawford spent his entire life in Morrow county. He was a justice of the peace in North Bloomfield township for 24 years, a member of the Ebenezer Methodist church southeast of Galion, and a member of the Sons of Union Veterans. He was a farmer.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Friday at the Snyder funeral home here. Rev. Ronald Kuenze, pastor of the Ebenezer Methodist church, will officiate. Burial will be in the church cemetery, southeast of Galion. Friends may call at the funeral home.

MRS. NETTIE DAVIS

MT. GILEAD — Mrs. Nettie Davis, 86, who lived two and one half miles east of Waldo, died unexpectedly yesterday at the Cleveland home of her grandson, Ellsworth Davis.

Mrs. Davis was born in Marion county but had lived in the Waldo community most of her life. She was a member of the United Brethren church.

Surviving besides the grandson, are three sons, John L., of Marion; Martin, of Westfield, and Elmon, of Ashley, and one daughter, Mrs. John Helman also of Ashley.

The body will be taken from the Curl funeral home in Cardington to the late home Thursday morning. Burial will be in the Marlboro cemetery in Delaware county. Other funeral arrangements are incomplete.

HOMER H. JOHNSON

GALION—Homer H. Johnson, 64, a farmer living three miles northwest of Galion, died at City hospital early today. He had been ill three weeks.

Born in Polk township, Crawford county, Mr Johnson had lived in this community all his life. He was a member of the First Lutheran church here.

Surviving are his widow, Alta Kohler Johnson; three sons, Harry H., west of Galion; Harley H., of near New Winchester, and Roy E., northwest of here; one daughter, Mrs. Herbert Kocher, of near Galion, and one sister, Mrs William Thatcher, of Bucyrus

Services will be held at 1:30 p. m. Saturday at the Snyder funeral home with burial in the Fairview cemetery. Rev Herbert S. Garnes, jr., will officiate.

City's Navy Men Tell Why They Re-enlisted In the V-6 Reserve

Mansfield navy men like the navy for a lot of reasons, but mostly because it affords extra training to help them find civilian employment and gives them an opportunity to go on 14-day cruises.

That's the substance of replies of four former Mansfield navy men who have enlisted in the V-6 of the U. S. Naval reserve. They were asked: "Why did you enlist in the naval reserve?"

The poll was conducted by Lt. Cmdr. A. E. Heiser, in charge of the Mansfield V-6 recruiting program, as part of the week-long naval reserve campaign. Questioned were James P. Gills jr., of Vetsville; Edward G. Knoll, 933 Country Club drive; Leon P. Ford, 280½ Dudley avenue, and Ray Turner, 136 Rae Avenue.

GILLS

Gills, whose tour of duty, as a shipfitter first class, included 17 months in the South Pacific in connection with invasion planning, had this to say about enlisting in the V-6: "The naval reserve program offers training in a great number of enterprises While my particular interest is in the machine shops of the new naval armory, I also want to benefit from the general training and equipment of the peace-time navy. I also look forward to taking the 14-day cruise each year."

KNOLL

Knoll, who served as a first class storekeeper aboard an aircraft carrier in the Atlantic theatre, said: "During the war the navy began an intensive program to streamline obsolete disbursing methods. It was amazing to watch and to take part in this modernization process. I find that the navy is still alert and making advances along this line. As this is in close keeping with my work as a paymaster at the Tappan Stove company, I want to keep up with these improvements."

Ford, who served as a chief motor machinist's mate aboard a destroyer - escort in the Atlantic during the war said: "The V-6 program offers an excellent opportunity to keep abreast of current and future progress in naval engineering developments. The mechanical equipment and engineering facilities of the new naval armory are going to be available for the use of the V-6 men which will permit me to follow my previous naval training."

FORD

Turner, who is field scout executive in Mansfield, served 30 missions with B-24 photographic squadrons and took original photos of Saipan. Of the V-6 program he had this to say: "I look forward to working with the complete photographic equipment included in the plans of the new naval armory. I also understand that instruction in photography will be available to V-6 men. As an instructor I will enjoy passing along the knowledge I gained during the war."

TURNER

To these advantages, stressed by each individual, Cmdr Heiser said, might be added the fact that the V-6 inactive reserve program permits enlistment at the old ratings; requires no drills or meetings, although cruises and training are optional; continues the individual's longevity, and assures him a civilian status as long as an emergency is not declared

Personnel who may apply for enlistment are those between the ages of 17 and 64, veterans of World War II who have been honorably discharged. Men between the ages of 17 and 18½ and 30 to 39 years of age who have not had previous military service may also apply for the V-6 but will not thereby become exempt from the draft laws, Cmdr. Heiser said.

Marines Prepare to Quit China as U. S. Gives up Peace Hope

EFFORT TO WIN TRUCE IN CIVIL STRIFE HALTED

State Department Terminates Truce Committee Functions.

WASHINGTON — (NS) — The United States today gave up on trying to establish peace between the warring factions of China and will withdraw its marines from that country.

The state department announced that connections were terminated with the "committee of three" which was set up in Chungking for the purpose of ending the Chinese hostilities.

Connections also were severed with executive headquarters created in Peiping for the purpose of supervising the execution of the agreements for the cessation of hostilities and the demobilization and reorganization of the armed forces in China.

Personnel to Leave.

All American personnel involved in executive headquarters will be withdrawn as soon as possible.

A state department spokesman questioned about the future of U. S. Marines stationed in China, replied:

"Instructions regarding the relief of the Marines will be given later in conformity with the approved plan for the termination of American participation in executive headquarters."

The committee of three was made up of the Central government of China and the Communists, with Gen. George C. Marshall as chairman.

Marshall, who tried to bring about peace in China for almost a year as President Truman's special representative, denounced extremists of both factions after he came back home to take over recently as secretary of state.

The United States will still maintain its diplomatic relations with China which are headed by John Leighton Stuart.

About 10,000 or 12,000 Marines are believed to be stationed in China at the present time. The system for bringing them back to the United States was not immediately disclosed.

There have been demonstrations against their presence after the end of the war with Japan.

Apparently, the United States decided that less prestige and political influence would be lost by withdrawing the Marines than leaving them in China.

The state department's announcement on termination of American participation in the peace efforts said:

Explains Action.

"The United States government has decided to terminate its connections with the committee of three which was established in Chungking for the purpose of terminating hostilities in China and of which Gen. Marshall was chairman.

"The United States government also has decided to terminate its connections with executive headquarters which was established in Peiping by the committee of three for the purpose of supervising, in the field, the execution of the agreement for the cessation of hostilities and the demobilization and reorganization of the armed forces in China.

"The American personnel involved in executive headquarters will be withdrawn as soon as possible."

'Kowtow!' Orders Ex-Army Officer

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Employs of the house armed services committee have it straight from their boss, Chairman Andrews (R-N.Y.), that they are expected to go about their work in a military manner.

Andrews, a World War I combat officer, instructed that when high-ranking army or navy officers and members of congress are present in the committee's office, employes addressed will stand—and remain standing—until told to be "at ease."

WINTER URGES TOLL HIGHWAY

ly and geographically, then declared:

"Ohio is a key state. Yet we have several areas in this state which are termed some of the number one traffic bottlenecks in the nation.

* * *

Need Better Highways.

"It has been predicted that there will be 20,000,000 more automobiles in the United States within a decade, and Ohio will have its share of them. Our highways need improvement. We are a highly industrialized state, but we are becoming more decentralized.

"Decentralization means we need better highways; it means we need superhighways to connect the great trade areas. That is one of the important reasons that I ask for your support."

Sen. Winter reviewed the engineering and financial success of the Pennsylvania turnpike, and declared he was convinced that Ohio could achieve similar success if his program were adopted.

* * *

Asks Public Aid.

He urged public support of the bill which he introduced in the state senate two weeks ago, calling for creation of a turnpike commission and an enabling act to permit issuance of revenue bonds to finance the proposed turnpike.

Toastmaster at the dinner, held in the Loudonville high school cafeteria, was J. Ralph Tschantz, president of the chamber. Sen. Winter was introduced by State Rep. J. Frank McClure of Ashland county.

At the business session before Sen. Winter's address, Bob Momm, A. C. Grant and Floyd McClure were elected to the board of directors of the chamber.

* * *

'Meet the Challenge.'

Present at the banquet, in addition to chamber members and guests, were members of the Rotary club, Business and Professional Women's club and the Progress club.

Music was furnished by the Loudonville High School Male quartet, under the direction of Miss Mary Arline Smith. The dinner was served by the Ladies Aid and Missionary society of Zion Lutheran church.

President Tschantz, before adjourning the meeting, called on Loudonville "to meet the challenge of the coming year," and declared the city must continue to expand through the efforts of its civic-minded residents.

P-TA COUNCIL ACTS TO STUDY SCHOOL FUNDS

to parents of school children by the children themselves.

Action of the council in seeking to investigate the financial operations of the board of education came after several P-T A units passed resolutions asking the council for such action.

* * *

P-T As Ask Inquiry.

Urging the investigation were the Hedges, Prospect, Bowman and West Fifth P-T A associations. In addition, the council had received from the board of education itself an invitation for a study of board finances.

Mrs. Stahl said she had previously presented at least one of the P-T A resolutions to the council but that no action resulted because "no one would take the responsibility of offering a motion on it."

She pointed out that the number of P-T A units seeking action was definitely a minority.

Judge's Talk Interrupted. Teachers Dissatisfied.

The misunderstanding and confusion of last night was the result of expressions of dissatisfactions by some teachers who contend they are not receiving the $500 yearly boost announced as granted by the board of education. Others assert that the entire tax levy should be used for salaries and that none of it should be diverted into other operating expense funds of the schools.

When a delegation of the crowd in the auditorium went to Room 207 to ask the council to adjourn to the auditorium, it interrupted for several minutes a talk on juvenile delinquents by Juvenile Judge S. H. Cramer. He had been asked to address the council nearly a week ago, Mrs. Stahl said.

The council's committee was instructed to report back to the council at the latter's meeting in Johnny Appleseed school Feb. 13.

Other business of the P-TA county included approval of a donation to the March of Dimes fund and arrangements for a school of instruction and dinner to be held May 27. The school will offer training for new P-TA officers and information for all P-TA members.

A Founders' Day program will be held at Johnny Appleseed school Feb. 13. Carl Byers, first vice president of the Ohio Congress of P-TA, will be the principal speaker.

GAS TRUCK-TROLLEY CRASH; 17 INJURED

CLEVELAND —(AP)— The collision of a street car and a double-trailer gasoline truck injured 17 persons, six seriously, last night, and unleashed a flood of gasoline at a busy street intersection.

Two fire companies flushed the gasoline from the street, and there was no fire.

Among the seriously injured were the street car motorman, Clyde Allen, 34, and the conductor, Mathew Reines, also 34. The truck driver, Paul E. Banks, 38, received minor injuries.

EX-BLACKSMITH DIES AT AGE 86

Levi Bigler, 86, retired blacksmith, died at his home at Springmill today at 6:45 a. m. following an illness of two weeks. Mr. Bigler's death follows by only three days that of his brother, Everett E. Bigler, who died in Bucyrus City hospital, Sunday.

Born in Monroe county Jan. 6, 1861, Mr. Bigler came to this vicinity 50 years ago and operated a blacksmith shop at Springmill for many years. He was a member of the German Lutheran church.

Surviving are his wife, Isadora Dangle Bigler; three sons, Ernest of Mansfield, Walter of Shelby, and Charles of Lexington; three daughters, Mrs. Elmer Moser of Mansfield, Mrs. Fred Luedy of Youngstown, and Mrs. Vernon Wolford of Greenwich; three sisters, Mrs. Amelia Dangle, Mrs. Mary Nippert and Mrs. Katie Lehman, all of Clarington, and 13 grandchildren.

Services will be conducted at the Finefrock funeral home Friday at 2 p. m. with Rev. R. W. McNary, pastor of the Ontario Community church, officiating. Burial will be in Memorial park. The body will be at the late home from Thursday noon until Friday noon.

ACTRESS FACES DIVORCE LOSS

LOS ANGELES—(NS)—Actress Laraine Day was under court order today to appear next Tuesday to show cause why her California divorce from Ray Hendricks should not be revoked.

Superior Judge George A. Dockweiler issued the order after assailing the actress' Juarez, Mex., divvorce and El Paso marriage to Leo (Lippy) Durocher as 'null and void in every state of the United States."

Judge Dockweiler charged Miss Day obtained her divorce in his court "as a cloak for illegal cohabitation between Miss Day and Durocher as husband and wife."

The jurist became incensed when, after the actress obtained her Los Angeles decree Jan. 13, she and Durocher turned up the following day in Juarez. After obtaining a Mexican divorce in one minute, she and Durocher were married four hours later in El Paso.

Under Califoria law a divorce does not become final for one year.

Judge Dockweiler ordered Hendricks to attend the hearing. Miss Day was ordered to bring to the hearing a certified copy of her marriage certificate and of her Mexican divorce. Both the actress and Hendricks were ordered to submit a copy of their property settlement.

B'NAI JACOB CALLS RABBI

At a meeting of the congregation of B'nai Jacob, 50 Sturges avenue, last night, members voted to call Rabbi Moshe V. Goldblum of Minneapolis as associate pastor of the church.

The decision to call Rabbi Goldblum is a follow-up of the recent re-organization of the church, when the congregation changed from orthodox to conservative.

Rabbi Goldblum will work with the present pastor, Rabbi David J. Rub. He was graduated from the University of Minnesota and the Jewish Theological Seminary at New Yory City. He is a former army chaplain.

Rabbi Goldblum, who will be a permanent resident pastor, will have charge of Friday night services at the Temple as soon as he takes up his residence here.

THANK GOD FOR MUSCLE-RUB!

WRITES MR. ROBERT JORDAN, COLON, MICH.

Advises every sufferer from Rheumatic—Arthritic—Sciatic—Neuritic Pains to try Muscle-Rub.

Here's the true story of a man who took treatments, used all kinds of remedies for his sciatic, neuritic pains without being helped in the slightest degree. Mr. Robert Jordan of Colon, Mich., suffered agony from pains in his hip—knee—calf of legs. The pain at times was so bad that he couldn't sit down. He tried several different treatments, many different medicines, all of which did him no good. He couldn't work. Life was misery for him.

Then one day he saw an advertisement of Muscle-Rub—the doctor's prescription—and in desperation bought a bottle. He used it as directed and in 3 days the pains were relieved and Mr. Jordan was back on the job.

No wonder he advises every rheumatic sufferer to try Muscle-Rub for fast pain relief. Get a bottle today at Gray's and all good drug stores.

Remember, Muscle-Rub is sold on this money back guarantee. If only half a bottle doesn't bring relief your druggist is authorized to return your money.

New Garbage Pick-up System to be Ready March 1

CARDS OUTLINE OPERATION OF PLAN IN CITY

Advance Payments Will Be Taken at City Building, Starting Saturday.

Cards explaining how Mansfield's new streamlined—and more costly — garbage-trash collection system is to work are to be delivered today to subscribers to the new service, Sanitation Supt. Al Strachan said.

Allowing a month to complete organization of the new system, Strachan said it should be ready to go into operation March 1.

The new system is designed to take the refuse collecting department out of the red and to speed up collections, especially of ashes and trash. A $6 ash-trash fee is charged under the new system.

For $7.20 a year, 10 gallons of garbage will be collected for each subscriber weekly. For an additional $6 a year, 300 pounds of ashes and trash will be collected from each subscriber each month. A customer must subscribe to the garbage service to be eligible for the ash-trash service.

* * *

Pay In Advance.

Payments, in advance, are to be received for each service beginning Saturday at the city building garbage office. Deadline for payment is Feb. 15.

Following the collection deadline Strachan said he will begin to organize the new system's routes. Once the route lists are complete and collectors have covered each route at least once—probably by the end of March—the new system's rules will be enforced, Strachan said.

One of the new rules, elimination of "back calls," is designed to speed up both services, Strachan said. After the program is in full swing collectors will not return to a home at which they have already made the required call for the month or week, Strachan said.

"This means that subscribers will have to remain at home or set garbage or ash containers outside their homes on the day a collection is to be made," he pointed out.

Strachan said that after the system is well under way he'll be able to announce in advance which districts will be covered by collectors during a specific period.

* * *

Limit Container Size.

Other rules limit the size of garbage containers to 10 gallons and require that they be set on ground floors. Weight of ash-trash containers is limited to 50 pounds and the number of such containers to nine. Ash-trash containers must have handles and be of such shape and size that they can be carried by one man.

Ashes are defined as "refuse from domestic heating appliances"; trash is defined as "household waste, such as cans, bottles, dishes." It does not include trees, vines, grass and paper. Trash that can be burned will not be accepted.

TWO PALESTINE HOSTAGES FREE

JERUSALEM —(INS)— Palestine remained tense today despite the release of two prominent Britons who had been kidnaped as hostages by the Irgun Zvai Leumi organization.

Judge Ralph Windham turned up in a textile factory in Ramatgan, a suburb of Tel Aviv, last night. He still wore the court gown he had on when abducted from the Tel Aviv district court the previous day.

British Banker H. A. I. Collins, kidnaped on Sunday at Jerusalem, was released outside that city.

Release of the two men came 24 hours after British authorities threatened to clamp martial law on a large part of the Jewish population.

Windham said he had been treated well by his captors.

A police guard about Windham's residence was doubled as a precaution against any new raids by the underground.

Bull Feels Good Now That Junk Is Out of Stomachs

FREEPORT, Ill.—(U.P.)—Inka, a prize $15,000 bull, stood in his stall and chewed hay in comfort today.

Inka had good reason for his comfort. He had undergone an operation which rid him of two pounds of assorted scrap metal and pebbles in the first two of his four stomachs.

The operation, performed by Dr. T. H. Ferguson, Lake Geneva, Wis., produced this loot: 13 pieces of bailing wire; one bolt; a dozen stones of assorted sizes; one piece of sheet metal, one by three inches; an eight-penny nail; part of a 16-penny nail; and some smaller odds and ends.

EXILED MUFTI HITS PARTITION OF HOLY LAND

LONDON—(INS)—Haj Amin El Husseini, exiled Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, was quoted today as declaring that the London conference on Palestine will be a failure so long as its agenda even considers partition of the Holy Land.

As quoted by the London Daily Mail, the Mufti warned partition of Palestine "would be an unbearable catastrophe to the Arab nation" and that "all Arab countries are absolutely determined" to prevent it.

Offers Challenge.

The Daily Mail Cairo correspondent, who obtained the exclusive interview with the Mufti, concluded that these words constitute a definite challenge that any further attempts at a partition will result in another Arab revolution.

Shortly before the London parley between the British and Arabs was adjourned temporarily on its opening day, Arab Leader Jamal Husseini told Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin that creation of a Jewish state would be a "running sore" making a "Middle Eastern Balkans" of the Holy Land.

Episcopalians Lengthen Wait After Divorce

CLEVELAND —(AP)— Divorced members of the Episcopalian church will have a longer wait before remarriage in Ohio than in many other parts of the nation.

Referring to a new canon relaxing restrictions on the marriage of divorced persons of the church in general, Bishop Beverley D. Tucker told the 130th meeting of the diocese yesterday these rules would apply in Ohio:

(1) A divorced person must have been a baptized member of the church in good standing for at least a year to be considered for marriage.

(2) A year must elapse after an annulment or divorce.

(3) Application for Episcopal inquiry into the couple's marital status should be made at least 30 days before the wedding date.

The bishop's explanation of the new Ohio canon was: "It lays great stress upon the need for serious preparation for marriage and for pastoral counselling."

Pink Hats Make Woman See Red, She Tells Cops

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—Mrs. Eleanor Webster, 41, arrested on a disorderly conduct charge, told police that when she sees a pink hat she sees red.

Mrs. Sarah Warsaw, 46, said that Mrs. Webster, a total stranger, screamed her dislike for pink hats, knocked her to the sidewalk and began beating her.

"I just don't like pink hats," Mrs. Webster told police.

She was held pending a hearing.

War's Over, But Study Continues On Amphibious Landing Technique

OPERATION OILSKIN—United States Army troops splash ashore in amphibious landing exercises at Aliso canyon, north of Oceanside, Cal. Twenty thousand men participated in these post-war games.

* * *

BY HAROLD KEEN

SAN DIEGO, Calif. —(CP)— Long after V-J Day, the Army, Navy and Marine Corps have been taking no chances on getting rusty in the amphibious landing technique that proved the key to victory in World War II.

High-ranking officers are studying results of one of the most extensive landing exercises in the nation's peace-time history, conducted with spectacular success recently by more than 20,000 men, 60 ships and 500 planes.

In this combined operation, it was assumed that an enemy force had seized control of the entire strategic coastal plain of southern California.

Troops first assaulted San Clemente island, land mass off the southern California coast which, during the war, guarded the sea and air approaches to Los Angeles and San Diego's vital aircraft industry.

* * *

A FEW DAYS LATER, having secured its military "springboard," amphibious landings were made on the beach at the mouth of Aliso canyon, just north of Oceanside 40 miles north of San Diego. The operation, given the code name "Oilskin," was designed to cut the simulated enemy's lines of communication between San Diego and Los Angeles.

The actual landings were made from Navy ships by troops of the Second Infantry Division, which distinguished itself in the Normandy and Brittany campaigns and now is commanded by Maj. Gen. Paul W. Kendall at Ft. Lewis, Wash.

These soldiers were reinforced by the Second Engineer Special Brigade, only remaining unit of six of its kind which saw action during the war, and is presently stationed at Ft. Ord, Calif., under Brig. Gen. D. A. D. Ogden.

Command of the great array of ships was in the hands of Rear Adm. B. J. Rodgers, who won fame as skipper of the cruiser Salt Lake City in the Battle of the Komandorskies, and as commander of amphibious groups in the Mediterranean and the Pacific.

* * *

BOTH LANDINGS were under cover of naval guns and with air support provided by naval and Marine Corps planes from fleet units in the San Diego area and Army planes of the 12th Air Force based at March Field, near Riverside, Calif.

The role of the enemy was taken by a battalion from the Second Engineer Brigade, against which the Second Division and other engineer troops advanced after securing the Aliso canyon beachhead.

Significance of the exercises was pointed up by the advance announcement that "new men will be trained to take the places of the Pacific veterans who are no longer in uniform."

These green men were supervised by officers who are combat-wise veterans of overseas action against real enemies. Besides those mentioned, they are the following:

Maj. Gen. LeRoy P. Hunt, Marine Corps veteran of two wars, who made the original landing at Guadalcanal, and now is commander of the troop training unit of the Amphibious Training Command.

Rear Adm. L. F. Reifsnider, who saw action from Guadalcanal to the occupation of Japan, and now is in charge of the Pacific Fleet Amphibious Training Command.

Maj. Gen. George P. Hays, commanding general of the Sixth Army, of which the Second Division is a part.

Maj. Gen. William D. Old, famed aviator and commander of the 12th Army Air Force.

Rear Adm. William K. Harrill, commander of Fleet Air, West Coast, whose Navy planes helped cover the landings.

Rear Adm. Arthur D. Struble, commander of Pacific Fleet amphibious forces, who was chief of staff of Navy forces in the Normandy invasion, and amphibious group commander in the Seventh Fleet throughout the Philippines campaign.

Maj. Gen. Louis E. Woods, commander of Marine Air, West Coast, who sent leatherneck fliers into the combined operations.

* * *

TROOPS LIVED under actual field conditions. After the amphibious forces landed their supplies and equipment on the beach, they set up a regular shore organization, sending out patrols and organizing perimeter defenses.

After the rigorous field discipline, akin to that in war, the troops "invaded" San Diego in a high-riding two-day holiday before embarking on transports for the return trip to the Pacific Northwest.

OHIO EMPLOYMENT HIGH IN DECEMBER

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The Cleveland office of the bureau of labor statistics reported today that total employment in Ohio non-agricultural industries, except government and construction, rose to 2,211,200 in December.

The estimate represented an increase of some 69,000 workers over the previous month and was 13 per cent over the December, 1945, figure. In the trade group, retail general merchandise reached an all-time high of 910,000 workers, a 9 per cent jump over November's figure.

Shortage of materials and the coal strike resulted in a slight decline in the durable goods industries from 822,300 workers in November to 817,200 workers in December.

RAILROAD ORDERS 1,000 COAL CARS

CLEVELAND—(INS)—The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway company announced today in Cleveland the ordering of 1,000 all-steel hopper coal cars.

Robert Bowman, president of the road, said the new cars would be equipped with roller bearings from the Timken plant in Canton.

The first cars, to cost approximately $4,200,000, will introduce into railroading the first large-scale utilization of roller bearings in freight car operations.

What to Do For That Sluggish, Down-and-Out Feeling

Remember the time when you could eat like a horse and bounded over with energy, felt happy as a lark? Was it not because you liked food—didn't know what indigestion was, felt strong as an ox? As age advances, "old stomach and the ever-changing blood" need help. Now you may help release vibrant energy to every muscle fibre, cell.

Every day, every hour—millions of tiny red-blood cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof seen that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent vitalizing ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juices when it is non-organically too little scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas, bad and give off that sour food taste.

Don't weak energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start on SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, look a healthy color glow in your skin—as flesh fill out hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Body Health. —Adv.

Artist Offers To Decorate Book Chest

Miss Eva Leonard's worries are over—at least for a little while. Last week, the children's librarian at the Public library sought an artist to decorate the "treasure chest," receptacle for 30 donated books which will go to children in a foreign country. The chest had been completed by the vocational classes at Senior high, but school art classes weren't advanced sufficiently in their study of art to paint on a wood medium.

Yesterday, Miss Leonard reported Miss Ann Murasko, 201 Western avenue, volunteered her services to decorate the chest which she estimated could be done in approximately one week. Now, all that remains is to get enough books to fill it. Only four have been received. They are from Mrs. William Weldon sr., Mrs. William Weldon jr., and two books from Room 106 at Johnny Appleseed junior high. Miss Leonard said that a book apiece from Mrs. John Hattery and Miss Ruth Culbertson, Senior high school librarian, have been promised.

MURRAY URGES 'GO SLOW' PLAN

WASHINGTON — (U.P.) — CIO president Philip Murray yesterday disclosed that he has urged CIO affiliated unions to "go slow" on strike action while seeking 1947 wage contracts.

"I hope that labor and industry will take time to do some real constructive collective bargaining," Murray told reporters.

He said he hoped the example set by the United Steelworkers, of which he is president, would be followed by other unions.

The steelworkers have agreed to extend their present contract from its Feb. 15 expiration date to April 30 to allow time to resolve the union's 15 demands and the company's 13 counter-proposals.

Murray said he hoped contract extensions would dissipate any fears in congress that punitive legislation is needed to reduce industrial strife.

School at Butler Being Remodeled

Remodeling of the heating system of the Butler Village school has started. The project has been approved by the regional Civilian Production administration.

E. H. Rider, principal, said today plans call for remodeling of the furnaces and installation of an air recirculating system.

The state will pay two-thirds of the $2,600 cost and the board of education one-third.

THIRTEEN-YEAR-OLD Gene Anderson, who stands only 3 feet, 11 inches and weighs but 45 pounds, was reported by police of Poland, Me., to have admitted beating his father to death with a baseball bat to protect his mother. OFFICIAL RULES SLAPPING'S OK

XENIA —(AP)— Greene County Prosecutor Marcus Shoup yesterday advised the father of a Bellbrook high school girl that he had no basis for "criminal charges" against a teacher who the father said slapped his daughter to discipline her.

Shoup told Argus Saylor, of Waynesville that R. W. Spence of Columbus, mathematics teacher at Bellbrook, had "the right to inflict punishment" on Saylor's daughter, Norma Jean, if he thought it necessary.

Last night Justice of the Peace Lyman Hoop dismissed charges of "assault against a minor female" which Saylor had brought against Spence, accused of slapping Norma Jean in the face for whispering in class.

Shoup told Saylor that if he still wished to take punitive action against the teacher he should try the civil courts. Saylor declined to comment upon future steps.

U. S. to Return World War II Dead In August

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The war department said today the return of the first World War II dead from temporary military cemeteries overseas is scheduled tentatively to begin in August.

Those who fell at Pearl Harbor and other war dead now in seven cemeteries in Hawaii will reach the San Francisco port of embarkation about Aug. 18.

Those buried in Henri Chapelle, temporary cemetery in Belgium, are scheduled to arrive at New York about Aug. 25.

Another 'Commission' Proposed

VOTERS of Ohio have reason to wonder just what line of reasoning lies behind the proposal to abolish the office of state highway director and substitute for it a three-man commission. The proposal was made in the form of a bill introduced Monday night in the Ohio senate by C. I. Powell, a Republican, from Springfield.

Nowhere has the commission form of administration proved particularly efficient. It is least efficient of all in a division of government requiring highly technical knowledge, long-range coordinated planning, and prompt decisions. The highway department is just such a division of government.

Presumably Senator Powell imagines that his bill would decrease "political influence." But all he needs to do is look at any board of county commissioners if he wants to see how fallacious that reasoning is. County commissioners, almost without exception, are forced to base their actions on political consideration. An appointive commission such as Powell proposes would certainly find itself under even greater pressure.

Senator Powell would pay each of his commissioners $7,500 a year, or a total of $22,500 for a job which now costs the state $6,500 a year. Admittedly, the $6,500 is unreasonably low for a competent engineer to head the department. It would make much better sense to propose paying the director a salary commensurate with his abilities.

And right now, with Murray D. Shaffer in the post of director, that $6,500 salary should be at least doubled to come near approaching his worth to the state.

Some Things a Visitor Notices

YOU MAY not have noticed it, but many of those posters boosting the sale of Christmas Seals are still wired to poles on streets in downtown Mansfield—a full month after their purpose has expired.

A visitor in Mansfield yesterday noticed it, however, and was unfavorably impressed—as he had a right to be, for such neglect is inexcusable.

The visitor also noticed that litter from a passing truck that had been gathering waste paper in the business area was being scattered along the street, and wondered why this was permitted—as he had a right to wonder.

Where Constant Vigilance Is Required

APPEARANCE of "fraud" in connection with issuance of liquor permits during the final days of ex-Governor Lausche's administration, is coupled with the almost pathetic admission by Mr. Lausche: "People in whom I had trust, and on whom I had a right to rely, betrayed me."

That is one of the sad things about holding a high public office—the utter impossibility of keeping tab on everything that is going on in various departments, and the blame that is always directed to the top man, despite his innocence of evil intent.

To the best of public knowledge, Frank Lausche endeavored to carry through an honest, praiseworthy administration and it is fair to assume that the flock of questioned liquor licenses—largely to so-called "private clubs"—were issued without his knowledge or consent . . . apparently against his specific order.

It is quite clear, however, that the way has been left open for such chicanery, and the investigation that is now extending out from Cleveland into other Ohio cities might well be expanded into a survey of the entire state with a view to determining the extent to which various liquor dispensing agencies have exceeded the bounds intended by post-prohibition legislation designed to prevent return of "the old-time saloon."

Licensing methods, under state control, and the variety of licenses made available under control board procedure, lend themselves to misrepresentation and fraud far more readily than did the strict regulations under which pre-prohibition saloons were required to operate—although the saloons were not so well adapted to the female and juvenile patronage that is a development of more recent years.

Now that the subject has been brought into the open, Governor Herbert and some legislators may feel inclined to have a look at the whole unsavory mess, with a view to the possibility of establishing an improved pattern of liquor control in Ohio.

Founder of Rotary Called By Death

ANOTHER example of the spread of an idea from one person into an organization of world-wide scope, with its constructive influence felt in practically every American city, is brought to mind by the death of Paul P. Harris, in Chicago, as he was approaching the age of 79.

It was in 1905, as a lonesome young lawyer in the great city of Chicago, that Paul Harris invited a few friends to meet in his office, where he presented the idea of forming a club which would bring together a group of representative business and professional men in friendship and fellowship.

Because early meetings of the group were held in rotation, at offices and places of business of members, the name, "Rotary", was chosen for the club—and it was from such a small beginning that similar clubs, carrying the same name, were organized in other cities. By 1910 the movement had become national and in 1912 it was expanded to international proportions. Now there are 5,638 Rotary clubs in 75 countries, with membership of 259,000, and this immediate post-war period is being marked by a resumption of club activities in several countries from which Rotary had been barred—notably, Germany, Italy and Japan.

Nor does the growth of Rotary alone reveal the vastness of Paul Harris's contributions to the world, for it was his idea of forming such an organization that has been patterned after by other groups, presenting similar high ideals, each of which has performed valuable service to members and to communities in which they have been introduced.

My, How Time Does Fly!

IT COMES as something of a shock to learn that aspirants for city offices have only another week in which to file their petitions with the board of elections, in order to qualify for the May primaries.

Except among year-round politicians, little thought appears to have been given to local politics, but it may be assumed that party leaders are fully alive to the situation and that the detail of filing petitions will not be neglected.

Utopia is the place where workers get higher wages, industry and business get larger profits and consumers get lower prices.

AN ANTIDOTE FOR COMMUNISM

Labor Problems Fully Discussed At Secret Meeting In New York

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—U. S. business moguls enjoy reading news stories leaking out of White House cabinet sessions, but don't always relish having reports of their own closed-door meetings in Wall Street appear in the press.

Despite probable denials, however, here is a play-by-play account of a recent New York discussion which Henry Ford II staged with the representatives of Standard Oil of New Jersey, U. S. Steel, and others regarding labor relations.

What happened at the meeting was important. It gives interesting insight into Mr. Ford's determination to start a price decrease.

Although the two-hour conference was supposed to be confined to labor-management problems, an interesting argument took place between aggressive John Bugas, Ford vice president in charge of labor relations, and U. S. Steel vice president John Stephens about the high cost of steel. Bugas pointed out that prices were getting so high, many consumers simply couldn't afford to buy. He suggested U. S. Steel give the entire economy a break by cutting, not raising, prices.

After all, argued Ford's right-hand man, any change in steel wages or prices would set a trend for the one nation. It would certainly help the fight against inflation, and ease labor-management negotiations.

U. S. Steel's vice president replied that while prices and profits were high, he didn't think they were too high. He said that industry's stockholders had gone through six very lean years in the '30's, passing up dividends which they were now entitled to collect retroactively. Bugas protested against this, but Stephens was adamant.

Ford executive vice president, Ed Breech swung in behind Bugas, pointing out that the steel industry did have to face the consumer directly, therefore might notice how much consumer pressure was piling up against high prices.

Professor Theodore Yntema, director of research for the Committee on Economic Development, backed up Ford by pointing out that prices generally were too high. Prices have gone clear beyond the range of the average working man, Yntema said, and he pointed specifically to department store prices, the prices of food, textiles, clothing, and movie admissions.

Professor Sumner Schlichter of Harvard agreed with Yntema, arguing that it would be wise for industry to lower prices now or face a public demand for higher wages it wouldn't like.

* * *

Standard Favors Decrease.

Standard Oil's Frank Pierce, an expert labor relations man, also put the case to the high-price boys, arguing that industry had to exercise its leadership by cutting prices.

"Yes," he said, "industry will have to exercise its leadership by curbing the food and steel trusts which have created such an outrageous situation."

Pierce did not mention it, but possibly had in mind the recent study government economists which shows how the food industry's profits have soared as much as 50 per cent in recent months. Armour's increased its profits 231 per cent for the first nine months of 1946 over the same period of '45. Sunshine Biscuit's profits after taxes rose 122 per cent, while Biscuit's profits rose 205 percent, the creameries of America made 67.3 per cent more, while wages dropped to a level lower than on V-J day.

Finally, U. S. Steel's Stephens said he thought the others were being a little rough on him. The way to low prices, he claimed, was through high production and fewer strikes. To this, Ford's Bugas retorted that, with prices so high, strikes were inevitable.

* * *

And Wage.

Pierce of Standard Oil then began a blunt discussion of the guaranteed annual wage. Sooner or later, he cried, industry would have to face the question of guaranteeing year-round employment to workers in the past. Pierce explained, Standard of New Jersey used to lay up its tanker fleet each winter, throwing thousands of men out of work. Eventually, however, Standard found that by pushing its line of home-heating fuels, it was able to provide year-round employment for its fleet of ships and all their crews.

"The engineers employed by industry," Pierce said, "have been able to develop production technology to the highest efficiency, but they have ignored or overlooked human technology. There's no reason why the auto industry can't work more than seven months a year. Not to do so is a waste of manpower."

Young Ford replied that he hoped to see the day soon when the auto industry was able to provide its workers with year-round employment.

It was a few days thereafter that Ford made his sensational announcement reducing the price of his cars.

No Lame-Duck Jobs.

Here's some bad news for Democratic congressmen and senators defeated in the last election who have been priming the White House for federal jobs:

President Truman has adopted a new policy—no lame-duck appointments, barring exceptional cases.

This is the story behind the hope of Senator Jim Mead's friends to land him a diplomatic post or some other top job.

Truman and Mead are old and close friends, fought shoulder to shoulder in many senate battles, and when Truman became vice president in 1944, Mead succeeded him as chairman of the war investigating committee. However, several times recently when White House advisers raised the question of putting the able New Yorker somewhere on the federal payroll, Truman replied with a flat "no."

"If the people of a state or a congressional district have decided that they don't want a man in Washington by voting him out of office, why should I go against their judgment by appointing him to some job as a reward for being defeated?" the president said.

So far, none of Truman's advisers has thought up a good answer.

Note—F. D. R. believed that when a man had long experience in Washington, that experience should not be lost. Men who really know government are hard to find, and he believed in appointing defeated congressmen to administrative positions. Other presidents usually have followed the same course.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Quashed Investigation Of "Obvious Blunder."

WASHINGTON—In the light of current news events, it is interesting to note the enthusiasm with which the new congress is setting up a surprising number of investigating committees.

It is impossible not to be curious as to just how far those committees will go in their investigations—particularly when such probings concern the past war and certain still-fairly-popular personalities.

Consider, for instance, the recent indictment of former Rep Andrew J. May on charges of seeking to defraud the United States government by peddling his legislative powers to various war contractors.

Currently, of course, it is a matter for the justice department and the courts. But there remains a cemetery south of Cassino in southern Italy which reminds me that it still is a situation the legislators might well linger over a moment or two.

North of Venefro there was, you will recall, a river known as the Rapido over which we threw our troops one foggy morning in a fiasco which cost us some two thousand casualties or more. So-called "civilian soldiers" and regular army men up to the rank of lieutenant-general reported the Rapido operation as one of the most murderously stupid blunders of the war—and they didn't hesitate to place the blame on the individual they considered responsible.

About a year ago, they brought that information before the house military affairs committee, which was headed at the time by the aforementioned Congressman May. Committee members were impressed by the testimony, which came from buck privates and major generals. A full-dress investigation seemed indicated.

But suddenly, Chairman May was called into a huddle with a few Pentagon personalities who later were forced to testify against him on war contract deals. They possessed recorded telephone conversations and stenographic reports of other May tete-a-tetes concerning such contracts.

At the moment, the army did not want the Rapido probe pushed. They seemed to have made their point with Congressman May, for he unexpectedly called the now quite curious committee into a closed session. All we got out of that session was that the Rapido probe was not going to be pushed.

No legitimate reason was given—although the general who had been blamed remained in charge of thousands of American soldiers overseas and a vital operator in America's postwar foreign policy.

You can't help but wonder if the current congressional committees will press that investigation, or if they will forget the Rapido dead in favor of the 1948 living.

Then there was the Anzio beachhead statement the other day by German Field Marshal Albert Kesselring who said that the operation represented the epic of Allied soldiers' bravery. It was that bravery, he said, which somehow overshadowed the obvious blunder of the entire operation.

"The landing force was initially weak, only a division or so of infantry and without armor," said Kesselring. "It was a half-measure as an offensive that was your basic error."

If that were merely Kesselring's comment, it wouldn't matter. But it serves to underscore, from the enemy point of view, what every experienced and outspoken Allied soldier said at the time. With the half-measure troop, equipment and supply allocations given to the operation, it was little short of military murder.

Anzio's still-existing "biggest little graveyard in the world," with its thousands of dead, testifies to the extent of that operation's deadliness.

We took some fifty thousand casualties there. No one yet knows officially what, if anything, was accomplished. You can't help but wonder if the new congress, with all its emphasis on investigating committees, will probe such situations as these.

And as you wonder, you can't keep from wishing that the dead who lie near Nettuno and south of Cassino still could vote.

Senator Tobey "Speaks His Mind" Boldly.

WASHINGTON—It is fortunate that there are still a few men in congress to speak up boldly and tear away the curtain of chicanery and hypocrisy that often hides so much that goes on there.

Such is Senator Tobey (R., N. H.), an honest gentleman who sees clearly and is not afraid to tell what he sees, a fine example of that grass-roots, down-to-earth progressivism that flourishes still in New England.

It was Senator Tobey, it will be recalled, who rose up in his wrath to fight President Truman's appointment of Edwin W. Pauley, the oil man, as undersecretary of navy, and won that battle by the thorough case he presented. It was during that investigation that he recalled, for those who had forgotten, that he was a Teddy Roosevelt Bull Mooser back in 1912.

Nor is he a GOP regular yet, nor will he ever be. He thinks and acts for himself in what he considers the public interest.

This he proved when he broke away from his party to oppose continuation of two special committees in violation of the Congressional Reorganization Act, and with a blistering lecture to his party.

This he proved also when he spoke out to reveal the plot of some Republican leaders and Democratic co-conspirators to rush through the senate the Bulwinkle-Reed Bill to exempt railroads and allied transportation agencies from the anti-trust law.

The senate interstate commerce committee was called hurriedly into session with plans to hold a single day's hearing, or at the most two days, and then jam the measure through. Now that whole procedure has been delayed somewhat.

Senator Tobey recalled an incident in a previous congress. What he said the other day about that past history is put down here, for it is not only most illuminating, but it also was overlooked.

As the committee prepared to rush the Bulwinkle-Reed Bill through last week, he told of his "vivid recollection" of another time when the committee was called together "on short notice."

"Members of the interstate commerce committee," he said, "were whispered to a meeting upstairs, and we came to a meeting. There was Mr. Fletcher, chief counsel at a large salary of the American Railway Association, and there was counsel for the nine largest roads in the country, legal attainments above par, splendid men.

"We had a subcommittee of which Mr. Truman was a member and Mr. Austin was a member, and Mr. Clark was a member, and I was a member. I was the least of these brethren that sat on that subcommittee.

"We had put through an amendment of certain railroad statutes, and we held exhaustive hearings, and did what we thought was a fair job, and were about ready to report it.

"The statement was made up here, Mr. Fletcher talking: 'Gentlemen, you have a pretty good bill here. You have done a good job.' He paid us a fine tribute. 'We have two or three little amendments we would like to have adopted, and if they are included we will let the bill go through.'

"'Did I hear you right?' I said. "'Did you say you would let this bill go through?'

"'That is right,' he said.

"'Are you telling us or are we telling you?' I asked.

"Back of that is a connotation, and you can see it. That is the thing that I do not like in legislation, that I do not like in hearings, a little group of men, that let it go through. What have we come to in this country that they tell congress?

"I am used to standing alone, and I say again, who speaks for the people in these things?"

A proper question indeed.

President Truman, it is known, will veto the Bulwinkle-Reed Bill, which the Republican leadership still intends, with Democratic help, to put through congress. He is familiar with the arrogance of special interests about which Senator Tobey spoke, and it is fortunate also that he will be in the White House when this bill comes along.

Republicans Moving Toward Middle.

WASHINGTON—Watching the maneuvers aimed at the fateful year 1948, we get an idea of how the political winds are blowing. It is an instructive lesson in the politics of a transition period.

In the game of musical chairs now going on among the Republicans, the goal is the center chair.

Both from the left and from the right the effort is to move into the middle position. That seems to be regarded as the spot conforming most nearly to the temper of opinion today.

Former Governor Harold Stassen of Minnesota wants to convince his party and the public that he is not radical; that his views are sound and not too far out of line with Republican thought. This, at least, is the interpretation being put on his recent statement on President Truman's budget.

Not even Chairman John Taber of the house appropriations committee—known to covering bureaucrats as "Terrible Taber"—was as drastic as Stassen in a not-to-be-touched classification. These were national defense, veterans' care, housing and interest on the national debt.

This left a remainder of $23,300,000,000. Stassen said that, in his judgment, this could be "cut across the board an average of 25 per cent or a total of five billions." Where these cuts could be made and how, Stassen did not specify. Republicans in congress who are now trying to fix a budget ceiling and prune the president's recommendations would like to know.

Stassen is in the fortunate position of being a candidate who does not have the responsibility of public office. He can talk about a 25 per cent cut without having to produce results for a waiting public.

Yet there is doubt about the wisdom of his trying to move into a safe middle position. His surest hope would seem to lie in his appeal to the great mass of independent voters who have admired him for his courage and forthrightness.

The conservatives and reactionaries in his own party are not likely to forgive him for the boldness of his convictions in the past. They remember, for example, that he was a member of the committee to aid the families of General Motors strikers in the prolonged contest a year ago.

From the opposite direction, another Republican is moving up on the center position. Ohio's Senator Robert A. Taft wants to disabuse the public of the notion that he is an ultra-conservative. In recent weeks he has consistently taken a moderate position, trying to restrain diehards in his party who would take the GOP back to the pre-McKinley era.

Taft would like to be regarded as a liberal. What is more, the facts show that he has exhibited far more concern over and interest in social legislation than almost anyone of prominence in his party.

He has expert knowledge on medical care, public housing, aid to education. In each of these fields he has pushed definite proposals. While they do not go nearly so far as the position inherited by President Truman from the New Deal. They are in advance of most Republicans.

Farmer's Diary

SAVE THE RAIN

A DROP of water! Who can put into words the meaning of it? It is a force to reckon with, for good or ill.

In the dark ages, when prisoners were killed by torture, sometimes, it is said, the head of a captive would be held in a rigid position, as in a vise, while from a container of water high overhead one drop at a time was permitted to fall upon the victim's skull. Slowly but surely the constant dropping wore away first the skin, then the tissues and bone. The result was always finally the same. It was only a matter of time.

Often, in the clay that lies between layers of rock, I have observed small depressions as if from heavy rain. It seemed as if a shower that fell millions of years ago had left its permanent record in the soft clay, and had sealed the surface so that no more moisture could seep through—and tiny irregular gullies pointed in several directions.

The laws that govern the action of water have not changed since time began. On the raindrops depends food for the people of all the world. Soil may be as rich as gold, but without rain it is useless.

The average annual rainfall for this northern Atlantic plain where we live is 36 inches. Enough water to make it a yard deep over hundreds of miles of surface every year—and yet the water table has fallen more than 100 feet in many industrial sections, and industry is threatened. And besides, the rain is tearing away the topsoil, leaching out the minerals needed for food growing, hauling away the best part of thousands of farms every year.

Instead of an obedient servant, it has become a destroyer of life and property.

It has been estimated that if we could keep only two elevenths of this vast rainfall on the land, the farms, the cities, and the industries would have enough and to spare. With emphasis being placed more and more upon contour plowing, and planting, permanent pasture for slopes and protective covering of trash and stubble, wheat, rye or kudzu, the rain drops are finely divided, and absorbed more easily by the soil.

To plant the steep slopes and hillsides with new forests will help to bring back the water table to its original height. Instead of being a nation of wasters, there is no reason why we cannot become a nation of builders.

4-Point 'War Insurance' Outlined by Gen. Hanley

MAJ. GEN. T. J. HANLEY JR.

A four-point "insurance program against another war," was strongly advocated to Mansfield Rotary club members yesterday by Major Gen. Thomas J. Hanley jr. commanding general of the 11th Air Force at Olmstead field.

Speaking at the club's luncheon, in the Mansfield-Leland hotel, Gen. Hanley said:

"The day has passed when it is the duty of the military man alone to defend the nation. It has now become the business of every man. War is total; therefore, defense must be total."

The four-point program outlined by Gen. Hanley calls for: (1) a strong, capable diplomatic corps backed by a non-political policy supported by the whole nation; (2) a strong central intelligence corps keeping us informed of what is going on all over the world; (3) strong, unified armed forces, and (4), most important, a public which is informed as to the make-up and purposes of the armed forces of the nation.

* * *

Insurance Against War.

"If we follow this four-point program," Gen. Hanley said, "I believe we will have more nearly adequate war insurance."

Speaking on behalf of the War Department's proposed Universal Military training program, Gen. Hanley pointed out that the last war had "taken from us our two greatest natural allies — the ocean's breadth is no longer a protection, nor was time. The airplane had annihilated both of these pre-war advantages.

"To make up for the loss of those allies," Gen. Hanley concluded, "we must have a basically trained citizen force in order to achieve our goal of 1,050,000 men. This would be met by a system whereby every eligible male would be required, before he is 20 years of age, to serve in a military camp for six months. He would then have an option of six months more service in the National Guard or the organized reserve, or he might choose a hitch in the regular army."

* * *

No Foreign Duty.

While trained by professionals, the trainees would not be subject to the jurisdiction of the armed forces, Gen. Hanley said. They could not be ordered to duty or out of the country.

"Although the regular armed forces might be able to get along without UMT," Gen. Hanley said, "I do not believe that the National Guard and the organized reserves can continue to exist without some means of recruiting men for them."

Recalling General Omar Bradley's recent statement that "isolationism is a thing of the past," Gen. Hanley said that our hopes for peace based on demilitarization and peace pacts after World War I had failed. "This time we must back our hopes, the United Nations, with strength as we know weakness will not work," he affirmed.

Gen. Hanley's brother, Jerry, was program chairman at what Rotary President Robert Porter described as "Hanley day." The two men's father, Thomas J. Hanley sr., was an interested onlooker, and spoke briefly at the conclusion of the meeting.

Pastors Ask County-Wide Local Option

COLUMBUS—(U.P.)—Ohio's pastors, assembled in convention here, yesterday asked the legislature for a law that would permit local option elections on a county-wide basis.

Rev. Edward Stimson, pastor of the Knox Presbyterian church at Cincinnati, spoke for the resolution. He said that local option on prohibition might be acceptable in rural districts, although "we will not see a return of prohibition in the large cities of Ohio in our lifetime."

He urged enactment of a law that would require high cost licenses for saloons, and added restrictions on sales.

The convention also adopted resolutions that asked the legislature for a fair employment practices law, a slum clearance measure, and an anti-bingo law.

Marjorie M'Clure to Wed R. G. Wilson of Columbus

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McClure, Vernum avenue, announce the engagement and approaching wedding date of their daughter, Marjorie Anne, to Donald Eugene Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Wilson, Columbus.

The First Presbyterian church will be the scene of the Feb. 8 nuptial service at 3 p. m. with Rev. David N. Roller officiating.

Miss McClure has chosen Mrs. S. B. Leonard as her matron of honor.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school, attended Oberlin college and, at present, is a student at Ohio State university.

Mr. Wilson graduated from Central high, Columbus, served three years in the U. S. Navy and is now attending Ohio State university.

Miss Ruth Smith, Hospital Nurse To Wed Joseph Adamescu, Feb. 15

THE approaching wedding date of Miss Ruth Jeanette Smith and Joseph J. Adamescu was announced by the mother of the bride to be, Mrs. Emma Smith, Home avenue.

The ceremony of Miss Smith and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Adamescu, South Adams street, will be performed Feb. 15 by Rev. Paul H. Saleste in the St. John's Evangelical church at 2:30 p. m.

Miss Lois Baughman has been chosen as maid of honor.

The wedding date was disclosed at a Mexican Fiesta party given by the mother of the bride-elect with Mrs. Paul Smith as associate hostess. Prizes were won by Mrs. Raymond Bauer and Mrs. Joseph Pival.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Jan. 30.

A program of postponement, "non-intervention" or a span of protracted vacation or relaxation from mental effort, physical depression, nervous tension and emotional excitement, might be a proper course to pursue under the existing stellar and lunar aspects. These give little encouragement for active operations.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a critical state of mind, nerves and emotions, in which over-active and concrete endeavors might aggravate conditions and place in jeopardy funds, credit, business position with personal reactions in domestic, social and business contacts. Postpone all important matters for diversion and rest.

A child born on this day may have a difficult and turbulent state of mind and emotions. Early discipline, understanding, kindliness, and consideration should set it in a constructive channel.

HOT FLASHES?

Women in your '40's'—this great medicine is famous to relieve hot flashes, nervous tension—when due to the functional 'middle-age' period peculiar to women. Worth trying!

'Terry' Doyle Feted by Friends at Nuptial Shower

Another in the series of pre-nuptial showers in honor of the approaching marriage of Miss Thelma Doyle and John L. Dill jr., was held Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Norma Prion, Mendota street, who was assisted in serving by her mother, Mrs. N. A. Prion.

The contest prize was won by Miss Margaret Bush who presented it to the honoree who received many other lovely gifts.

The guests were seated at a long table centered with a bouquet of pastel flowers for dessert. The room was decorated with streamers in the colors to be worn by Miss Doyle's attendants with a miniature airplane suspended from the ceiling bearing a banner inscribed "Terry and John."

Miss Doyle and Mr. Dill will be wed Feb. 1 at 7:30 p. m. in an open church ceremony in the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Tourist Club Told Mineral History; Developments

The early history and pioneer days of Canada were discussed yesterday by the members of the Tourist club as the group met at the Women's Club with Mrs. Herman L. Gilbert as hostess.

"Recent Mineral Developments in Canada" was the topic by Mrs. W. L Parkinson who also described the "Golden Mile" and the discovery of gold bearing ore. The types of people of that era were also discussed with Rosa Brown as an outstanding example.

The most urgent mineral hunt of the ages was for pitch blend which is of national importance in regard to the manufacture of the atomic bomb.

Feb. 11 the group will meet at the Women's Club with Mrs. Elmer Post as hostess.

Mr., Mrs. Ewers To Reside In City

Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Ewers were united in marriage Jan. 25 by Rev. W. H. Hale and are now residing at the home of the bridegroom's mother, 186 Buckingham street.

Mrs. Ewers is the former Miss Loyse Forsythe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Forsythe, Third avenue, while the bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Laura Belle Ewers, Buckingham street, and Glendon Ewers, Greenwood avenue.

The bride wore a gray suit with navy blue accessories and a corsage of lavender sweetpeas and gardenias.

Miss Fredia Hunter and Charles Buckley served as attendants.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Ewers attended Mansfield Senior high school. Mrs. Ewers is employed at Kobacker's while the bridegroom, a veteran of three years in the U. S. Coast Guard is employed at the Ohio Brass company.

June Keck Weds Leland Koppert

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss June Elaine Keck, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Keck, Lida street, to Leland E. Koppert, son of Mrs. Mable Koppert, West Fifth street, which took place Jan. 25.

The home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Rose Keck, Columbia avenue, was the scene of the 2 p. m. ceremony performed by Rev. Bernard C. Schneider. The bride wore a brown suit with gold accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Miss Nelda Koppert, sister of the bridegroom, served as maid of honor wearing a blue dress with black accessories and a corsage of pink roses.

John Brown of Mt. Vernon was best man.

SHELBY FIRM SHOWS PROFIT OF $309,527

Salesbook Company Pays Dividend of $3.50; Taxes Higher.

SHELBY — Net profit of the Shelby Salesbook company was $309,527 for 1946, as compared with $233,959 for the previous year, the annual report disclosed today.

Net profit amounts to $5.44 per share as compared with $4.11 for 1945, the statement showed. Federal taxes on income were equal to $3.35 per share last year as compared with $3.22 for 1945 and 74 cents for 1929.

"Although the company's net sales increased 26.8 per cent over the previous year, approximately 11 per cent of this increase was due to higher selling prices made necessary by very substantial increases in the cost of paper, supplies and labor during the year," the report said.

Federal taxes cost the company $190,713 last year as compared with $183,230 for 1945. Other taxes raised the amount to $288,890 as compared with $218,518 for the previous 12 months.

Following a policy founded in 1932, and consistently followed since that date, the company at Christmas time made a distribution of five per cent of wages, salaries and commissions paid during the year for the largest profit distribution ever made by the company.

* * *

$1,730,000 Payroll.

Payroll costs for 1946, consisting of wages, salaries, commissions, vacation and holiday pay, new business bonus, awards and profit sharing, amounted to $1,730,829. These expenditures were equivalent to $30.40 per share of common stock.

Dividends paid during 1946 amounted to $199,262 as compared with $170,796 for 1945, or $3.50 per share last year and $3 for the previous year.

As previously announced, the company created a pension trust for employes as of Dec. 1, 1945. To be eligible to enter the plan, an employe must be 25 years of age and have had continuous employment with the company for five years. The firm pays $3 for each $1 invested by the employe.

Of the 595 stockholders in the company, 54 per cent live in Shelby. Approximately 550 persons are employed by the firm which is Shelby's second largest industry.

The annual stockholders' meeting to elect directors and to hear annual reports will be held Friday afternoon at the company's home offices here. Following the session, the newly elected directors will meet to name officers for the new year, including the successor to Henry E. Sheets of Shelby, who retires as president on Friday.

Bucyrus Hasn't Any Candidate

BUCYRUS—With only one week left in which candidates for Bucyrus city offices may file petitions of candidacy, not one candidate has made known such intentions to date, Mrs. C. B. Sharer, clerk of the county election board, said today.

Offices to be filled in the November election are those of mayor, auditor, treasurer, solicitor, president of council, four ward councilmen and three councilmen-at-large.

EXCHANGE CONCERN DECLARES DIVIDEND

MILLERSBURG — Millersburg Equity Exchange company held its annual stockholders' meeting Saturday afternoon in the agricultural hall, Millersburg. Talks were given by U. S. Kreider, field man of Lima, and County Agent S. N. McIntosh.

The annual report was given by Dale Ulrich, of Tabbert, and the Skelly Audit company of Toledo. Stock dividend of three per cent, which amounted to $1,250.25, has been declared and the report showed a net profit of $24,000. Total sales for the year were over $429,000.

Two directors, H. H. Palmer, west of Millersburg, and A. J. Booth, Millersburg, were elected for two years. Other directors whose terms have not expired are Clinton Miller, Millersburg R. D. 3, A. M. Nigh, Millersburg, and Weldon H. Uhl, Millersburg R.D. 1.

SNOOK HEADS GROUP

WILLARD — Ray Snook has been appointed chairman of the ticket committee for the annual father-and-son banquet of the Willard Masons, it was announced. The banquet is scheduled for Feb. 22 in the social rooms of the Grace Methodist church.

Beware Coughs Following Flu

After the flu is over and gone, the cough that follows may develop into chronic bronchitis if neglected. Creomulsion relieves promptly because it goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm, and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes. No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough or you are to have your money back.

CRAWFORD BUYS GALION BUILDING FOR GI HOUSING

Houses in Bucyrus, Crestline Also Purchased.

GALION—The Crawford county commissioners have purchased a building here for conversion into six apartments for veterans of World War II and their families, it was announced today.

Purchased was the Flowers Furniture store at 347 West Atwood street, former site of Good Samaritan hospital. Owner of the property was C. L. Flowers, who will vacate the building within 60 days.

Veterans who will occupy the Galion apartments will be chosen by the commissioners upon recommendation of Scarbrough post, American Legion.

The building is of brick construction with a modern heating plant. It will require a minimum of remodeling for conversion into apartments.

BUCYRUS — The recently-purchased Menninger residence here probably will be ready for occupancy by four veterans' families within a month, the county commission said today.

The families which will occupy the apartments already have been selected by the commissioners, but their names have not been announced.

The county was alloted $30,897 from the $6,000,000 state fund set aside by the state for veterans' housing. The Bucyrus residence was purchased for $10,000.

Residences in Galion and Crestline also have been purchased by the commission for conversion into veterans' apartments, but cost of the buildings has not been disclosed.

Red Cross Head Declines Offer

BUCYRUS — Leaving unfilled the chairmanship of Crawford county Red Cross chapter, the board of directors named other officers for 1947 at the first meeting of the year Monday night at the Chapter house.

HOROSCOPE

For Thursday, Jan. 30.

A program of postponement, "non-intervention" or a span of protracted vacation or relaxation from mental effort, physical depression, nervous tension and emotional excitement, might be a proper course to pursue under the existing stellar and lunar aspects. These give little encouragement for active operations.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a critical state of mind, nerves and emotions, in which over-active and concrete endeavors might aggravate conditions and place in jeopardy funds, credit, business position with personal reactions in domestic, social and business contacts. Postpone all important matters for diversion and rest.

A child born on this day may have a difficult and turbulent state of mind and emotions. Early discipline, understanding, kindliness, and consideration should set it in a constructive channel.

AUXILIARY MEETING.

Members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Letter Carriers' association met at the home of Mrs. Arthur Beidelschies, 264 Davis road, Tuesday evening. SHELBY FIRM SHOWS PROFIT OF $309,527

Salesbook Company Pays Dividend of $3.50; Taxes Higher.

SHELBY — Net profit of the Shelby Salesbook company was $309,527 for 1946, as compared with $233,959 for the previous year, the annual report disclosed today.

Net profit amounts to $5.44 per share as compared with $4.11 for 1945, the statement showed. Federal taxes on income were equal to $3.35 per share last year as compared with $3.22 for 1945 and 74 cents for 1929.

"Although the company's net sales increased 26.8 per cent over the previous year, approximately 11 per cent of this increase was due to higher selling prices made necessary by very substantial increases in the cost of paper, supplies and labor during the year," the report said.

Federal taxes cost the company $190,713 last year as compared with $183,230 for 1945. Other taxes raised the amount to $288,890 as compared with $218,518 for the previous 12 months.

Following a policy founded in 1932, and consistently followed since that date, the company at Christmas time made a distribution of five per cent of wages, salaries and commissions paid during the year for the largest profit distribution ever made by the company.

$1,730,000 Payroll.

Payroll costs for 1946, consisting of wages, salaries, commissions, vacation and holiday pay, new business bonus, awards and profit sharing, amounted to $1,730,829. These expenditures were equivalent to $30.40 per share of common stock.

Dividends paid during 1946 amounted to $199,262 as compared with $170,796 for 1945, or $3.50 per share last year and $3 for the previous year.

As previously announced, the company created a pension trust for employes as of Dec. 1, 1945. To be eligible to enter the plan, an employe must be 25 years of age and have had continuous employment with the company for five years. The firm pays $3 for each $1 invested by the employe.

Of the 595 stockholders in the company, 54 per cent live in Shelby. Approximately 550 persons are employed by the firm which is Shelby's second largest industry.

The annual stockholders' meeting to elect directors and to hear annual reports will be held Friday afternoon at the company's home offices here. Following the session, the newly elected directors will meet to name officers for the new year, including the successor to Henry E. Sheets of Shelby, who retires as president on Friday.

Bucyrus Hasn't Any Candidate

BUCYRUS—With only one week left in which candidates for Bucyrus city offices may file petitions of candidacy, not one candidate has made known such intentions to date, Mrs. C. B. Sharer, clerk of the county election board, said today.

Offices to be filled in the November election are those of mayor, auditor, treasurer, solicitor, president of council, four ward councilmen and three councilmen-at-large.

EXCHANGE CONCERN DECLARES DIVIDEND

MILLERSBURG — Millersburg Equity Exchange company held its annual stockholders' meeting Saturday afternoon in the agricultural hall, Millersburg. Talks were given by U. S. Kreider, field man of Lima, and County Agent S. N. McIntosh.

The annual report was given by Dale Ulrich, of Tabbert, and the Skelly Audit company of Toledo. Stock dividend of three per cent, which amounted to $1,250.25, has been declared and the report showed a net profit of $24,000. Total sales for the year were over $429,000.

Two directors, H. H. Palmer, west of Millersburg, and A. J. Booth, Millersburg, were elected for two years. Other directors whose terms have not expired are Clinton Miller, Millersburg R. D. 3, A. M. Nigh, Millersburg, and Weldon H. Uhl, Millersburg R.D. 1.

SNOOK HEADS GROUP

CRAWFORD BUYS GALION BUILDING FOR GI HOUSING

Houses in Bucyrus, Crestline Also Purchased.

GALION—The Crawford county commissioners have purchased a building here for conversion into six apartments for veterans of World War II and their families, it was announced today.

Purchased was the Flowers Furniture store at 347 West Atwood street, former site of Good Samaritan hospital. Owner of the property was C. L. Flowers, who will vacate the building within 60 days.

Veterans who will occupy the Galion apartments will be chosen by the commissioners upon recommendation of Scarbrough post, American Legion.

The building is of brick construction with a modern heating plant. It will require a minimum of remodeling for conversion into apartments.

BUCYRUS — The recently-purchased Menninger residence here probably will be ready for occupancy by four veterans' families within a month, the county commission said today.

The families which will occupy the apartments already have been selected by the commissioners, but their names have not been announced.

The county was alloted $30,897 from the $6,000,000 state fund set aside by the state for veterans' housing. The Bucyrus residence was purchased for $10,000.

Residences in Galion and Crestline also have been purchased by the commission for conversion into veterans' apartments, but cost of the buildings has not been disclosed.

Red Cross Head Declines Offer

BUCYRUS — Leaving unfilled the chairmanship of Crawford county Red Cross chapter, the board of directors named other officers for 1947 at the first meeting of the year Monday night at the Chapter house.

Charles Wiles, 1946 chairman, declined reappointment. Officers named were Frank Sittler, vice chairman; Mrs. Robert White, secretary, and J. H. Blicke, treasurer.

The board set as the 1947 financial quota $7,890, a substantial decrease from the $11,100 figure in 1946.

The Land-of-Always Summer lies
'Twixt oceans blue, 'neath azure skies. —Kitty the Catbird.

IN THE LAND-OF-ALWAYS-SUMMER

Some folks call it Central America and some folks call it the Tropics, but to the winged folk who fly down there to spend the winter it is the Land-of-always-summer. Kitty the Catbird had spent all his winters there until this one. He would have been there now but for an accident. He had strained a wing in the late fall just before it was time to start. He could fly, but for only short flights. He had known that that strained wing could not possibly take him that long distance, so wisely he had made the best of matters and was spending his nights very comfortably in a cedar swamp, and most of his days, too, seldom leaving it except for daily visits to the feeding stations Farmer Brown's boy kept supplied with food. Just now he was visiting in the dear Old Briar-patch.

"Are there Green Meadows and Old Pastures down there in the Land-of-always-summer?" Peter Rabbit wanted to know.

"How can plants grow on the trunks of trees?" Peter interrupted.

"Not in the part where I go. It is mostly Green Forest, but it isn't like the Green Forest you know," replied Kitty.

"Why isn't it? Aren't the trees as big?" asked Peter.

Kitty chuckled. "A lot of them are bigger, but they are different. You wouldn't know any of them. Their branches meet overhead so that looking up you cannot see the sky. Plants with the loveliest and most wonderful flowers grow on the branches and on the trunks of some of them and——"

"How can plants grow on the trunks of trees?" Peter interrupted. "Where are the roots?"

"How should I know how they do it? I'm just telling you what I have seen. They grow with their roots hanging down in the air, perhaps not all, but a lot of them anyway," said Kitty.

"I don't——" began Peter.

"Don't you dare say don't believe it, Peter Rabbit! I've seen them," Kitty interrupted sharply.

"But roots grow in the ground or in water. They can't grow in air," protested Peter.

"The roots of these plants do. The plants are high up in the trees, sometimes out on a limb, sometimes where a limb grows out from the trunk and sometimes seeming to cling to the trunk. The roots of some are quite long and hang down and swing in the wind when any wind gets in there," insisted Kitty the Catbird.

Peter still shook his head. "Don't try to make me believe that plants can grow on trees without roots in the ground. To believe that I'll have to see it," declared Peter.

Kitty the Catbird's bright eyes twinkled. "If you should see plants growing on trees would you believe what I have told you?" he asked.

Peter nodded. "Of course I would," said he.

"Any time you want to run over to the Green Forest you can see plants growing on trees," replied Kitty.

Peter blinked. He scratched a long ear with a long hind foot. He scratched the other long ear with the other long hind foot.

Perhaps it helped his thinking. He shook his head again. "There is nothing like that over there. If there is I would have seen it long ago," said he.

"You have," chuckled Kitty.

"I have not," Peter contradicted most impolitely.

"What, never seen moss growing on trees?" cried Kitty, his eyes twinkling.

Peter looked confused. "Oh, that? Of course, but——" he began.

"Mosses are plants," declared Kitty.

BILL PROPOSES $2,000 BASE FOR TEACHERS

COLUMBUS —(INS)— A bill guaranteeing Ohio teachers a minimum of $2,000 salary and fixing the state's share of the school foundation program at 92 million dollars a year was to be given its second reading and referred to the senate education committee today.

Sponsored by the Ohio Education association, the bill was introduced by Sens. Virgil Cramer (R-Toledo) and Albel Daniels (R-Greenfield) chairman of the senate finance committee, both long-time backers of school money measures.

Boosts Cost.

The 184 million dollars provided in the bill for 1947-48 is some 71 million dollars more than the 113 million provided in regular and special sessions in 1945 and 1946.

The bill would also:

1. Distribute the grants on a basis of enrollment rather than average daily attendance, which would tend to increase subsidies;

2. Increase the minimum guaranteed expenditure for each pupil in elementary schools from $67.50 to $109, and for high school students from $81 to $131;

3. Increase the flat grant per pupil to all school districts, regardless of need, from $45 to $60 for grade school pupils and from $54 to $72 for high school students;

5. Lengthen the minimum school year from 32 to 36 weeks, and

6. Encourage the consolidation of schools—elimination of the one-room "little red schoolhouses"—by limiting the state subsidy for such schools to $2,500-$3,000 for one-teacher schools and between $5,000-$6,000 for two-teacher schools.

Sponsors of the bill labeled the $2,000 minimum salary provision "one of the most important" in the bill.

Barclay On Bridge

Practically every good bridge book tells you that a singleton, or a blank suit, has value if in a side suit of the dummy, but is worthless in the declarer's hand. It is explained that declarer's trumps are already counted as trick-takers, and that placing any worth on the side suit shortage would be merely counting the same trump cards or cards twice, whereas over in the dummy a side suit shortage offers a chance to use otherwise worthless trumps for additional tricks by ruffing. But a singleton can have value in the declarer's hand.

	♠ Q 8 6 5 4 3 ♥ J ♦ K 8 4 ♣ Q 5 4
♠ A K ♥ 6 3 ♦ A J 9 3 ♣ 10 9 7 6 2	N W E S	♠ 7 2 ♥ A K Q 7 5 2 ♦ Q 7 6 5 ♣ 3
	♠ J 10 9 ♥ 10 9 8 4 ♦ 10 2 ♣ A K J 2

(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

North	East	South	West
Pass	1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣
2 ♠	3 ♥	Pass	4 ♦
Pass	4 ♥

East explained later that, with three diamonds to the Q and two little clubs, he would not have opened the bidding with his hand. But the fact that he could not lose more than one club trick made him decide to bid. While that arrangement did not definitely increase his number of trick-takers, it did seem to cut down his losers.

Let's see how that worked out. South scored his club K and his A was ruffed by East. Three high trumps left the winning 10 out. East also was destined to lose exactly one trick in diamonds, so made his contract right on the head.

He was right, however, about that club singleton. If he had held two little clubs, he would have lost two tricks in the suit, so would have been down one in his game contract. That is, unless the clubs would have established well enough to give him three diamond discards—which might have been a tough job in timing the play.

Corporal Says Goering Kept Poison In Pipe

CLEVELAND — Corp. Paul Czir, 19, who was in charge of quarters at the Nuernberg jail the night war criminal Herman Goering died, said today that the poison capsule he swallowed to escape the gallows was hidden in his pipe stem.

Czir, here on terminal leave from the army, said security officers "found tobacco stains on the capsule and believe Goering had the poison in his pipe stem most of the time he was in jail."
